U. S. Planes Down 9 Japs, Bomb Field in Malaya

Initial Attack By Americans Called Success

MacArthur Repulses New Attack on Batan and Digs In.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—A fierce aerial battle in which American fliers shot down nine Japanese interceptor planes at a cost of two American bombers was reported tonight by the War Department which also disclosed that United States Army Air forces had entered directly into the fight to save Singapore.

The air battle took place Saturday near Menado, in the Netherlands Indies island of Celebes. Besides the two U. S. bombers lost, another was damaged and four of its crew members were injured.

Attack Successful.
The first reported appearance of American air forces in the struggle for Singapore was a smashing raid two days earlier in central Malaya, on the Japanese-held Sungei Papani airdrome near Penang, and some 300 miles northwest of Singapore.

Describing the attack as successful, the War Department said three large fires were started among Japanese aircraft on the ground and in a hangar in the area, and all American planes returned safely to their bases.

The announcement of the bombers' blows overshadowed earlier reports that General Douglas MacArthur's intrepid little American-Filipino army was digging in for a further stubborn defense on Batan peninsula after parrying the latest Japanese attack in the Philippines.

Bases Secret.
The bases from which the bombers operated were not disclosed, but they presumably were out of the range of enemy raiders or well-hidden. Testifying to the vast aerial front on which the United

Berlin Admits Enemy Holds Initiative on Other Fronts.

BERLIN, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Official Broadcast Recorded by AP)—Soviet forces which landed on the south coast of the Crimea in a counteroffensive on the Black Sea peninsula have been driven from the port of Feodosiya in several days of fierce fighting, the German high command declared today.

The war bulletin said German and Rumanian troops which reoccupied the port so far had brought in 4,600 Red army captives and war booty including 73 tanks and 77 guns.

Elsewhere, the initiative admittedly was held by the Russians. The communists said Soviet attacks had been pressed despite

Japs Smash 35 Miles, Capture Burma Base

Panhandle Severed by Westward Push to Sea; British Yield Tavoy, Tin Center and Air Stronghold.

RANGOON, Burma, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The Japanese have severed the Burma Panhandle in a westward drive to the sea which forced a British withdrawal from Tavoy, tin center and one of the two most important coastal towns on the 400-mile neck of Burmese territory stretching down the Malay peninsula.

A British communique today said imperial defenders, beset by superior numbers of invaders, fell back from Tavoy to more favorable positions. The retirement presumably was to the north toward Moulmein, chief town of the panhandle and site of an RAF base, some 170 miles away by mountain road.

Tavoy, a town of 25,000, on the estuary of a river of the same name, had been used by the RAF as a base for attacks on Japanese airfields at Bangkok and other points in Thailand as well as against the invaders driving down the Malay peninsula.

The British announcement said Japanese planes were believed now based at Tavoy. Moulmein, target of repeated Japanese attacks, again was raided today and Rangoon had another alarm when planes were seen north of the city, but it was not disclosed where they came from.

No casualties were reported in the latest Moulmein attack. Nineteen persons were said to have been killed in a previous raid.

Natural Rubber Found in West, Scientists Say

BERKELEY, Cal., Jan. 19.—(AP)—On the alkali deserts of six western states there are 500,000,000 pounds of natural rubber—enough to supply the United States for five months—ready for immediate harvesting, University of California scientists have informed the government today.

This rubber, although not quite as good as the prime product from the East Indies, is entirely satisfactory, the experts reported.

Most important, they said, is that it is already on hand and can be collected and made into tires, tubes and other finished products without undue effort.

It exists in the rabbit brush, a large perennial shrub which covers vast stretches of the west's great open spaces.

U. S. Sends Air Forces To Aruba and Curacao

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Army headquarters announced tonight that the United States, in co-operation with the Netherlands government, has sent air forces to the islands of Aruba and Curacao "to assist in protection of those vitally important oil centers."

The islands are off the coast of Venezuela.

Couch Charges Raise Switching In City Offices

Council Votes Blanket 10 Per Cent Bonus to 1,900 Employees.

Councilman J. Allen Couch yesterday charged on the floor of the council chamber that heads of the construction, fire and Carnegie library departments "ignored salary increases voted by council by re-ordering distribution of raises to those they favored."

The charges were a lively moment in the meeting of council, which slashed equipment and improvement accounts of the city government to provide a blanket 10 per cent six-month salary bonus for 1,900 nonschool employees, costing a total of $155,000.

Drennon Attack.
An ordinance offered by Councilman Couch prohibiting the switching of salary increases from one employee to another, with or without consent of the department heads, was ordered sent to the finance committee with instructions for a public hearing with all department heads and employees involved to be summoned as witnesses.

Councilman Raleigh Drennon branded the alleged practices as "the damndest thing I ever have heard" and said a "department head sanctioning such transactions ought to be fired."

Clarke Donaldson, construction department head, and Chief C. C. Styron, fire department head, denied knowledge of such alleged practices, while Miss Fannie Mae Hinton, librarian, said she was "unofficially directed by the finance committee and the mayor to make the switch because there had been a mistake in raising an employee entirely out of her classification and ignoring an employee who had been 16 years with the department."

Equipment Cuts.
A total of $36,527.45 was cut from equipment for various departments and ranged from a $100 typewriter for the mayor's office to road conditioners for the construction division. Another $25,927.49, the city's share of reconstructing the Second Avenue bridge; $5,000 for the west North Avenue underpass and nearly $10,000 previously set aside for playground purchases.

Council turned down two attempts by Alderman Ed A. Gilliam to appropriate an additional $45,000 to raise all nonschool employees a blanket 10 per cent even though they were raised more than 10 per cent last year.

Widespread Warfare Between U. S. Navy, Marauders Reported

S. S. Malay Limping Into Port After Submarine Strikes Without Success at Oil Carrier.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—An Axis submarine struck at another tanker off the Atlantic coast of the United States today, damaging but failing to add the vessel to the known toll of three ships sunk along the coast in the past six days.

A Navy Department announcement said the 8,206-ton tanker Malay, under charter to the Gulf Oil Company, was attacked early today but was nearing the safety of an Atlantic port tonight and her crew was believed safe. She normally carries a complement of 34 men.

The Navy, which already had come to grips with Axis undersea raiders along the Pacific coast, long has been on the prowl in Atlantic waters.

Calling attention to the sinking of other tankers on both coasts, Ralph K. Davies, deputy petroleum co-ordinator, urged oil companies to increase the use of railroad tank cars for movement of petroleum products from producing fields.

The extent of the deadly game of hide-and-seek between the enemy undersea craft and American planes and vessels along the Atlantic seaboard was hidden behind a veil of censorship required by the necessities of keeping information from the foe.

But the spread of known submarine activities—from off Long Island to North Carolina—led to general belief that the Axis had sent its skulking pigboats in considerable numbers to prowl American waters.

And there could be no doubt that the Navy, though grimly silent, had taken up the challenge, and that its swift surface craft and far-ranging air patrols were engaged in vigorous counter-measures.

Results Kept Secret.
The results of the warfare may not become known for weeks, or even months. American policy, so far as antisubmarine activities are concerned, is to keep the enemy guessing. For several reasons, no announcement is made when a U-boat is sunk.

One is that word of a sinking, if it reached the enemy high command, would let it know that it must dispatch another craft to carry out the desired operation. Another is the effect on the morale of submarine crews from the disappearance of sister craft without so much as a word as to what has become of them.

Latest announced victim of the submarines to be sunk was the Standard Oil tanker, Allan Jackson, torpedoed without warning off the North Carolina coast yesterday. (See story on Page 4.)

The tanker Nornew was sunk Wednesday off Long Island and the tanker Coimbra 100 miles off New York city on Thursday.

In addition, survivors of a sunken Panamanian freighter reached an eastern Canadian port. Where this unidentified vessel went down was not disclosed, consequently it, too, may have been sunk in coastal waters.

With many details of the incidents not yet passed by censors, there was no accurate figure as to the total death toll.

Twenty-two were counted lost, however, from the 6,635-ton Allan Jackson alone. Thirteen survivors of the crew of 35 reached Norfolk, Va., aboard a rescue ship.

Two torpedoes struck the Allan Jackson. Her oil cargo, spreading over the seas, caught fire, and many of those lost presumably were burned to death.

Roosevelt Boosts U. S. Spending For War to $114,000,000,000

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The United States war program jumped to the astronomical total of $114,000,000,000 today when President Roosevelt recommended new expenditures of $28,500,000,000 for planes, ships, tanks and other vital military and naval equipment.

The $114,000,000,000 includes all appropriations, authorizations and requests made since June 30, 1940. Officials indicated that the war-spending figure of $56,000,000,000 for the next fiscal year, as mentioned in Mr. Roosevelt's recent budget message, was not changed by the new recommendation. Part of the requested funds will be spent prior to that fiscal twelve-month, part will be spent after it, and the rest was taken into accounting making up the $56,000,000,000 total.

Mr. Roosevelt proposed to Congress today that $15,962,645,021 in cash and contract authorizations be made available to the Navy Department for use in the next 18 months and that $12,525,872,474 in cash be given to the War Department for the next six months.

Under the President's recommendations for the Army, $4,000,000,000 of the total could be used for lend-lease purposes authorized under the original lend-lease bill. That measure put a $1,300,000,000 top on the value of materials already appropriated for which the President could dispose of under the basic law.

Mr. Roosevelt also asked $7,000,000 for an inter-American highway and $5,950,000 to finance recently expanded work of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Peanuts Aplenty Despite the War

Americans still will be able to munch "hot roasted peanuts" at baseball games or circuses this summer, despite the exigencies of wars.

The nation's peanut-lovers will not have their favorite food rationed this year even though millions of pounds of peanuts will be used to produce peanut oil for war purposes, W. B. Jester, executive secretary-treasurer of the National Peanut Council, said yesterday.

Jester said an announcement last weekend that farmers had been asked to triple their peanut crop this year for oil production had caused fears that no "goobers" would be available for eating purposes.

Argentina Must Decide Status By Thursday

Brazil Threatened by Axis, It Is Revealed.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Reluctant Argentina, persistent holdout against breaking relations with Germany, Italy and Japan, has been given until Thursday to decide whether she will join the other Americas in a solid front against the Axis, it was learned tonight.

In response to this virtual ultimatum, the Argentine delegation to the Pan-American Conference of Foreign Ministers was reported to have asked 24 hours' additional time to make up its mind.

This turn of events followed the disclosure that German and Italian diplomats have orally threatened Brazilian Foreign Minister Oswaldo Aranha with a statement that a rupture between Brazil and the Axis would be regarded as "a most unfriendly act."

But the ill-concealed Axis maneuver, apparently part of a concerted scheme to scuttle the conference, backfired immediately. It was responsible, an excellent source said, for the grim declaration the same day by President Getulio Vargas that since war had come to the western hemisphere Brazil no longer could be neutral.

The pressure upon Argentina was reflected in a rapid series of hotel room conferences today. President Vargas of Brazil himself was playing a leading role and was in constant communication with the acting Argentine President, Ramon S. Castillo, at Buenos Aires.

Cole Blease, 73, Ex-Senator, Governor, Dies

Colorful South Carolina Political Figure Passes at Columbia.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Former Governor and U. S. Senator Cole L. Blease, 73, of South Carolina, died at 8:25 p. m. tonight. He was admitted to Providence hospital Saturday and underwent an intestinal operation Sunday.

Blease was governor from 1911 to 1915 and senator from 1925 to 1931, but was an unsuccessful candidate for these offices on other occasions. The general assembly elected him for a four-year term on the Unemployment Compensation Commission, beginning July 1, 1940.

His political star began shining in 1890 with election to the house of representatives from Newberry county. He was mayor of Newberry from 1910 until he became governor the next year.

U. S. Requests Judge To Quit Viereck Case

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The Justice Department announced today it asked Justice T. Alan Goldsborough to step aside as judge in the trial of George Sylvester Viereck because of alleged personal bias against the government and that Goldsborough refused.

Viereck, who registered with the State Department as an agent of German interests, is accused of withholding essential information from his registration papers.

Department spokesmen said an appeal would be taken from the judge's ruling or if Goldsborough dismisses the suit against Viereck for want of government appearance a new indictment would be sought. The justice has ordered Viereck's trial to start Wednesday.

Affidavit Filed.
William Power Maloney, government counsel, took the unusual step of filing an affidavit of prejudice before Goldsborough. The affidavit charged "a personal bias or prejudice against the government of the United States." Maloney said under oath that the Viereck trial had been set for February 2 before Justice F. Dickinson Letts and that on January 15 Justice Goldsborough summoned him and told him to be ready on January 19. Maloney pleaded that he had just completed a seven-day trial and that the government was entitled to the period of preparation agreed upon for the Viereck trial.

Goldsborough, allowing two additional days, told Maloney, according to the affidavit: "Says Trial to Go On."

"This case goes to trial later than Wednesday, January 21, and I am going to try it. You might as well get it through your head once and for all that no other judge in this court can try this case except me and the trial will start on Wednesday whether the government is ready or not."

The department announced it would ask the circuit court of appeals tomorrow to direct Goldsborough to step down. Justice Goldsborough overruled the Maloney affidavit, the department said, on grounds it was not legally sufficient to sustain the plea and that the fact that the statements in the affidavit were not true.

Gable Leaves Hotel To Select Wife's Casket

Requests Search for Jewelry She Was Wearing.

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Red-eyed and silent in sadness, Clark Gable taxied alone to a mortuary today to select a casket for his blonde actress wife, Caroline Lombard.

Her body, one of 22 that were burned beyond recognition in the crash of an airliner Friday night, lay in a separate room at the funeral parlor, unviewed by the actor, who chose to remember his wife as he last saw her.

The trip to the mortuary marked the first time the grief-stricken actor ventured from his hotel room since he was informed Saturday that all aboard the plane had perished.

Seeks Jewelry.

Later he went with friends to the footfalls, where he talked with a group of men with trucks who were waiting for a recovery party to bring out the last of the bodies.

There he made a special request—that the charred wreckage of the airliner be carefully searched for jewelry the actress was wearing.

Especially was he interested in regaining a gold V-for-Victory pin and the wedding ring that symbolized their marriage.

Meanwhile, tribute from the White House, congress, motion picture studios and moviegoers poured in for the screen actress.

F. D. R.'s Tribute.

In behalf of himself and the nation's first lady, President Roosevelt sent a telegram of condolence to Gable, praising Miss Lombard for having given "unselfishly of her time and talent to serve her government in peace and in war."

At the time of the accident, the actress, her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Peters, and her press representative, Otto Winkler, were en route to Hollywood from Indianapolis, where Miss Lombard participated in a defense bond selling program.

Tentative funeral services for the actress and her mother were set for Thursday at Glendale, Cal., near Hollywood.

Tribute Paid.

In Hollywood, where Miss Lombard was one of the most popular actresses in the film colony, employees of all movie studios stood at attention at noon, while taps were sounded and a tribute paid to her.

A United Artists spokesman there said that the actress' last picture, "To Be or Not To Be" in which she starred with Comedian Jack Benny, probably would be released next month as originally scheduled. Studio officials today viewed the recently completed film, in its finished form, for the first time.

Hollywood recalled that pictures featuring other prominent stars were released after their deaths. "Steamboat 'Round the Bend," starring Will Rogers, was shown a few months after he met death in an Alaskan airplane mishap. As many went to see it, Sol Wurtzel, who produced it, said today, as if Rogers were alive.

But how she came to be "Lady Haw Haw" no one seems to know, least of all her relatives here to whom she has not written or communicated in many years.

Mrs. Liddell said Jane Anderson is now about 50—but on her arrest in Russia they said she appeared to be about 36. A national magazine describing her last week said she was middle-aged and grim-faced.

"Most of the people who knew Foster Jane well as a girl are dead now," spry Mrs. Liddell said yesterday. "We didn't see much of her after she left for the west, but an uncle of mine, Archibald Johnson, who is dead now, kept up with her writing."

Was Correspondent.

"She wrote many stories for magazines and went to England as a correspondent during the first World War. I remember that Buffalo Bill Cody was supposed to have sponsored her first book but I never read it and don't remember the name of it even."

"I used to have some pictures of Foster, but they were all lost years ago when my home burned," she added.

Relatives here recognized Jane Anderson's picture in a magazine but Mrs. Liddell said she had not known her cousin was "Lady Haw Haw" until yesterday.

Worked in London.

Mrs. Matthews said she remembered being told her cousin had gone to England as a reporter and had worked on Lord Northcliffe's newspaper in London.

"As I remember, she was the first, or one of the first, women to fly the English channel," she said. "I think she did it as a feature for her paper."

Mrs. Liddell said Foster was the only child of the Andersons. Her mother was the daughter of Foster Luckie, who once owned vast tracts of Atlanta and after whom Luckie street was named. Mrs. Liddell was a first cousin of Jane Anderson's mother.

4-Lane Road Seen North Of Marietta

Dam Work To Cause Relocation of Dixie Highway.

Plans are in the making for a four-lane highway from Marietta to Cartersville to tie-in with the present four-lane strip which now extends from Atlanta to Marietta, it was disclosed yesterday at Rome by Frank K. Webb, state highway construction engineer.

Webb said the surveys are already in progress in connection with the road, construction of which hinged on the fact that building of the Tarver dam on the Etowah river at Allatoona forced relocation of Highway No. 41 from Marietta to Cartersville.

It was pointed out that the proposed dam is expected to back up Allatoona creek, which joins the Etowah just above the dam site, for a distance of 20 miles, and which would place the present Highway 41—the old Dixie highway—under water for a distance of 10 miles between Acworth and Cartersville.

Webb said the new route probably would bypass Kennesaw and Acworth and enter Cartersville by an overpass instead of the present narrow underpass at the railroad, and that parts of the railroad also would have to be relocated, as at one point the present trestle would be 40 feet under water.

Cost of the relocation will be borne by the government, it was said.

Small Business Plight Blamed On Monopolies

Thurman Arnold Cites Unpreparedness of Democracies.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Thurman Arnold blamed monopolies and "the private seizure of economic power" for much of the state of unpreparedness of the democracies today in testimony before the House Small Business Committee.

He also reported that there was noticeable development of "many types of conspiracy" to keep up prices of necessary goods, including some material of which the supply is plentiful. While not all such actions were to be condemned, he added, some of them would bear looking into.

Representative Fitzgerald, Democrat, Connecticut, termed Arnold's observations "alarming" and suggested that "we should buy about 100 machineguns and go out and shoot about a hundred of these guys."

Guy Holcomb, head of Arnold's Small Business Section, reported that one OPM official, whom he did not identify, when asked what would happen to the small businessman, had replied, "Let him die, for in the world to come there is only room for battlers."

Representative Halleck, Republican, Indiana, commented that "most of the OPM officials unfortunately" took that attitude, and Representative Bulwinkle, Democrat, North Carolina, remarked that some OPM representatives are the "most incompetent people I have ever seen."

Holcomb suggested creation of an independent federal agency to handle the problems of small business. He blamed the priorities system, contract distribution, and procurement difficulties for the small businessman's problems.

Salvation Army Worker Found Brutally Slain

Transient Admits Hammer Murder of Atlanta's Mother.

Mrs. Bessie Brewer, 46, worker for the Salvation Army at Smithfield, N. C., near Raleigh, and the mother of James Bishop, of 123 Ellington street, S. E., was hammered to death in her home yesterday and a few hours later, police said, a 23-year-old transient gave himself up and confessed the crime.

Bishop, employed as a driver by Transportation, Inc., here, was notified by police of the brutal slaying of his mother, and left immediately for North Carolina.

The transient was booked as Joseph James Ellis Jr., of Jersey City, N. J., according to Detective Sergeant O. C. Jordan, of Raleigh, the Associated Press reported. Detective Sergeant Jordan quoted Ellis as saying he had taken a narcotic and didn't "know what I was doing," but that as soon as the realization of the crime dawned upon him, he decided to give himself up.

Mrs. Brewer's body was found by Nellie Peele, 16, who lived in the Brewer home. A blood-spattered hammer lay near by.

Sergeant Jordan quoted Ellis as giving this account of the slaying: "I was taking some tools from a box when the idea came to me to hit her. Then I found her money. There was about $29. I found the key to her car. Then I got her car out of the garage and left. When I reached Raleigh, I realized what I'd done."

Ellis, Jordan said, sent to Mrs. Brewer's house about two weeks ago, asked for a night's lodging, and since then had been doing odd jobs there in return for his keep. Jordan said the youth admitted he had a long police record.

Ellis was lodged in the Johnston county jail at Smithfield. According to Major Vincent Cunningham, of the Salvation Army here, Mrs. Brewer served as an outpost worker of the Goldsboro branch, directed by Major Paul Jones. She was in charge of a small Sunday school in Smithfield, he said.

Georgia Colleges On 'Full Time'

The University System of Georgia yesterday agreed to operate 12 months a year, at a meeting of deans and presidents of all state-operated schools in Athens. The educators also voted to confer with the Association of Georgia Colleges on a plan to accept top-bracket high school students as college freshmen after completion of the junior year.

Under the new "speed-up" plan, seniors at the University of Georgia will be graduated May 2, and from Georgia Tech, May 16. The graduation date is optional at other schools, but must not be before May 2. All schools will eliminate spring vacations this year and begin the summer term June 8.

Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech, said that institution would start the accelerated program February 5.

Splash 'Debut' for Litvinoffs Ties Up Washington Traffic

Gilt-Edge Capitalism Is Host to New Soviet Ambassador and Wife at Joseph Davies' Mansion in Capital.

By RUTH COWAN.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Two comrades, the new Soviet ambassador, Maxim Litvinoff, and his English-born wife, Ivy Low Litvinoff, were given a splash "debut" by gilt edge capitalism that tied up traffic tonight.

Joseph Davies, a wealthy lawyer and a former U. S. ambassador to Russia, and his wife, heiress to millions in breakfast foods money, were hosts at a reception for the recently arrived Litvinoffs whom they had known in the land of the Soviets.

It was the type of party that rates a "wow" in Washington. The names in the receiving line were top-notch—Mrs. Henry Wallace, wife of the vice president; Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the secretary of state, for example.

The guests were what is called the "creme de la creme." There was Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, in black broadtail coat and corsage hat; Mrs. Sumner Welles, wife of the undersecretary of state, in sables; cabinet members and their wives; diplomatic representatives of the British, the Austrians, the Canadians, the Dutch, Mexicans and South American countries.

They came by the hundreds—and it was raining. Cream. Two Lumps. The wife of a supreme court justice, Mrs. Stanley Reed, helped pour tea from a magnificent gold tea service. She remembered, as the result of a small party that the Sumner Welleses had given, that both Litvinoffs like their tea with cream and two lumps of sugar. Society reporters were down their pencils writing important names.

Through it all Ivy Low Litvinoff, whose father was a distinguished English historian and whose uncle, Sir Maurice Low, was a London correspondent in Washington several years ago, took it all very calmly and in her manner. A receiving line to others might be a formal "how-do-you-do?" but to her, if someone she had met before and liked came along, she stopped to chat a moment.

For this event she wore a two-tone purple afternoon frock. Her shoes were black open-toe sandals. Her gray hair was brushed back from her high forehead. She had on no jewels.

Her husband was quite swanky in formal "tails," as was their host. Mrs. Davies wore the smart gray taffeta gown with net insert grays that she had worn at her daughter's recent debut in New York.

Debutante Daughter. The debutante, Nadenia, 17, a lovely blonde, was there hoping around on one foot because she had sprained an ankle. She had with her, to keep her company in all this grown-up society, a young girl friend.

It is a magnificent home—this Davies mansion. In the foyer were potted palms, a handsome chandelier. There were fine Oriental rugs on the floors of the library, dining room and reception rooms. A string quartet played in a balcony.

In the library, where champagne and other drinks were served, some comrades in military uniform paused to look at volumes of their country's history. On tables were autographed pictures of Stalin and Litvinoff.

On the walls were oil paintings of Catherine the Great, Czar Paul, and other members of the Russian royalty. The Davieses had brought the portraits back from Russia.

Word went about that some of the guests were disappearing into the night.

Nelson Drafts 4-Point Plan for Speeding Production

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Donald M. Nelson, working 12 to 18 hours a day since his appointment as war production chief, was reported tonight to have drafted this four-point general plan for speeding arms output:

Civilian Defense Fund Approved

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—A $100,000,000 civilian defense authorization won final congressional approval today after house Republicans lost a last-ditch fight to keep it out of the hands of Fiorello La Guardia, Civilian Defense director.

The house refused, 172 to 167, to send the bill back to a house-senate conference committee and then approved the measure, 334 to 2. Senate approval quickly followed on a voice vote.

As the house originally passed the bill, control of the fund would have been vested in the War Department, but the senate voted to put it under the Civilian Defense director. The senate also approved an unlimited expenditure authorization.

The conference committee agreed to give administration of the fund to La Guardia's agency and to limit it to $100,000,000.

1. Appointment of a one-man "czar" for the automobile industry to supervise the conversion of virtually its entire output to military goods, and weld its competitive companies into a single pool of productive capacity.

2. Creation of a war requirements board to determine exactly the needs of the Army, Navy, Maritime Commission and others and to decide how critical materials shall be divided among them.

3. Revision of the present OPM organization by eliminating some branches and divisions, combining others, and generally simplifying the Washington machinery to reduce red tape and duplication of effort.

4. Placing civilian procurement experts—responsible to Nelson—in Army and Navy procurement offices to guide and advise on the purchasing of weapons, munitions and supplies for the armed forces.

These proposals were described by officials as "tentative but probable." Definite details of the imminent shakeup may be made known Wednesday, when Nelson has scheduled his first press conference since President Roosevelt named him war production director last week.

The appointment of an overlord for the automobile industry was expected to be one of the earliest moves. Who might get the job was a matter of wide-open speculation. OPM's present automotive chief is Ernest C. Kanzler, president of Universal Credit Corporation.

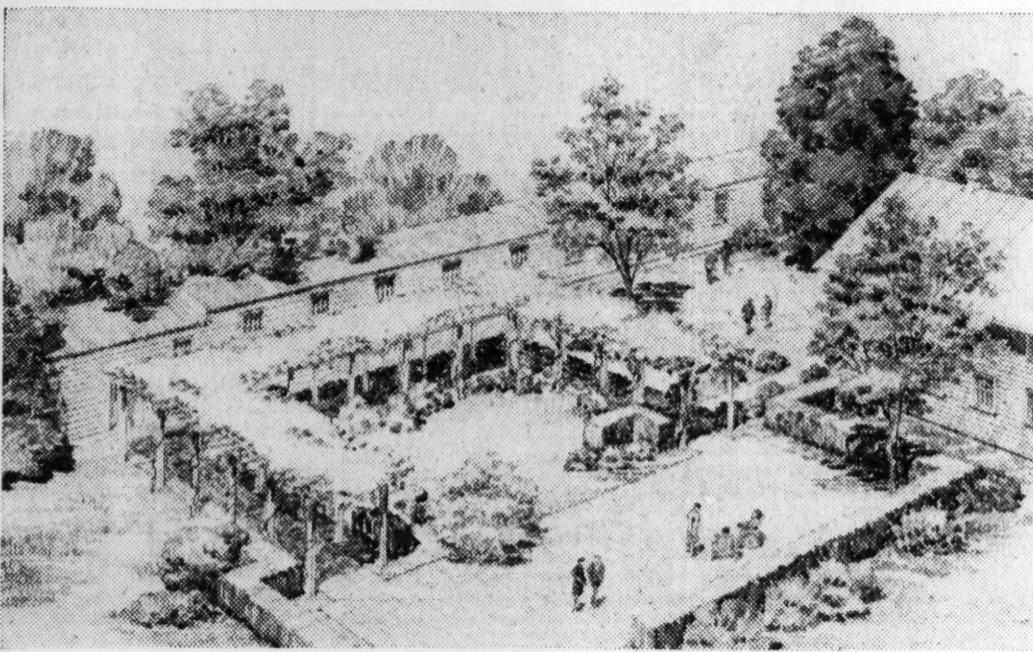

However, most observers looked for appointment of some one more in the public eye.

The inauguration of one-man control was expected to terminate the brief career of the industry-labor "subcommittee" created by OPM to advise on conversion earlier this month.

U. S. To Encourage Peanut Production
WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The Agriculture Department will make government purchases of peanuts at $82 a ton for No. 1 white Spanish type as a means of encouraging production. The purchase price for No. 1 runners will be $78 a ton and $70 a ton for Class A Virginias, the department said.

HERE'S THE "BEFORE" VIEW—The substantial Red Cross and recreation buildings at Lawson hospital, shown here in the raw, unlandscaped state, can offer no spring-time tonic for the tired eyes of sick soldiers and sailors yet. But when gift trees and shrubs from Atlanta gardens are planted—we-ell, that will be a different picture.

AFTER THE PLANTING—This is the way the Red Cross building at the hospital will look when arbors have been planted to shade the convalescent patients, when walks are bordered by flowering shrubs and trees for birds. The plans are being contributed by landscape architects and the work is to be done by WPA labor. Atlantans are asked to give shrubbery and trees from their own gardens.

U. S. Planes Down Nine Japs in Indies Clash

States forces are operating, Menado is some 1,800 air miles from the raided Malayan androm.

The aerial battle between Japanese interceptors and American bombers occurred after five of the latter had raided a flying field at Menado in northeast Celebes, a strategic point dominating the Molucca passage for shipping between Australia and Japan.

The communiqué, describing this episode, said:

"On January 17, five American Army bombers attacked an enemy flying field at Menado in northeast Celebes. After several bombs had been dropped on the field with undetermined result, our planes encountered a formation of Japanese interceptors. In the ensuing fight, nine enemy planes were shot down. Two of our bombers are missing, and a third was damaged, with four members of the crew wounded."

The loss of the bombers was a heavy blow, despite the numerical victory, inasmuch as they presumably were long-range heavy four-engine craft such as have been employed most successfully in the vast Far Eastern theater.

The War Department's morning communiqué said that following the repulse of the third major enemy assault in the Philippines in two weeks, General MacArthur had reported that ground operations had dwindled to fighting of a desultory nature, chiefly between patrols.

Enemy planes were active in reconnaissance flights, forecasting a renewal of the assaults which have forced the outnumbered defenders slowly back to the rugged 25-mile long neck of land north of Corregidor fortress. Official observers here felt sure the foe would attack again.

Japanese Broadcast.
(Domei, Japanese news agency, broadcast from Tokyo that General Douglas MacArthur's forces had established three main defense lines across the 20-mile wide peninsula, the first running from Abucay on Manila bay to Mt. Natib, just south of Olangapo naval station, and the last stretching across Mt. Marivales, overlooking Corregidor island fortress. The third was said to be an intermediate line.

(A London reception of a Tokyo broadcast of an imperial headquarters announcement said Japanese navy planes scored direct hits on "four enemy ships totalling 5,500 tons" off the Philippine island of Cebu yesterday.

(There was no explanation of the action. Some United States communications companies recently announced restoration of communications with Cebu, along with nearly all the rest of the larger islands between Luzon and Mindanao and with Mindanao except at Davao.)

Bishop Moore Opens Parley For Ministers

Tells How the Church Can Attain Its Ideals.

By DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.
Bishop Arthur J. Moore last night, in his initial lecture to 350 Methodist ministers and theology students attending the Emory University's 80th annual ministers' week, said the Christian church, to prove its deathlessness and make the actual church attain the ideal, must have a wider and wiser discernment of God's purpose through the church; maintain a vital relationship with its Lord, and aggressively attack the problem of winning the world for Christ.

Bishop Moore is to speak again at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon and at 7:30 o'clock tonight. The afternoon theme will be "The Kingdom Is Coming," and the night subject will be "The Gospel of Jesus Christ Is Adequate."

Shrubs Sought For Lawson Hospital Area

Atlantans Asked To Help Beautify Grounds.

By CELESTINE SIBLEY.
Old Doc Spring needs a helping hand out at Lawson General hospital this year.

That well-known makes-you-want-to-live season of the year—the time of green-gold sunshine, sticky buds unfolding, birds singing in the trees, green grass—is going to have pretty tough going out at the new Army hospital this year.

In fact, spring is not going to get in any licks at all for the weary, winter-bound patients in the hospital unless Atlantans lend a helping hand. The reason is simple: There are no trees for birds to sing in, no grass to put up tender new-green shoots, no buds to unfold.

Raw, Red Clay.
Lawson General hospital is that new. The grounds, trampled by the heavy shoes of workmen hurrying to get up the buildings and rutted by big machines, are still raw, red clay and mud.

There has been no time up to now for landscaping the hospital grounds.

But this is good planting and transplanting weather and WPA workmen are ready to roll up their sleeves and start "healing in" plants and shrubs which will bring a flowering to Lawson General hospital.

The one thing is getting the shrubs.

Undertake Job.
The Peachtree Garden Club, Atlanta affiliate of the Garden Club of America, along with similar organizations throughout the country, is undertaking to grant the American Red Cross request that it beautify the grounds of Red Cross buildings and recreation halls at Army camps.

The Red Cross building and recreation hall is just a starter. The Peachtree Garden Club has plans for terraces on each side of the auditorium, croquet grounds, spaces for horseshoe throwing and other spaces for outdoor recreation that will fit the needs of convalescent patients.

Vines and shrubs to take the raw edges off buildings, trees to shade the walks, flowering borders and restful clumps of grass are planned for the grounds.

To get the shrubs, the garden club is looking to generous Atlantans who will be transplanting and digging out over-crowded borders any day now.

Need Called Vital.
"This is a vital need and public appeal to all those who love flowers," Mrs. Frank Neely, a member of the garden club committee, said yesterday. "It will mean refreshment of spirit to soldiers, airmen, and sailors who have already made physical sacrifice for their country. Please give of the fruits of your yards."

Atlantans who want to contribute shrubs or trees to the hospital grounds may take them to any of several depots to be established on vacant lots in various sections of the city. As soon as a truck load of plants is accumulated they will be transported to the hospital and will be heeled in until enough of certain varieties is accumulated for designated planting.

Depots Planned.
The depots already planned are: Fire station at Moreland and DeKalb avenue; northwest corner of West Peachtree and Fifth street, back of the Sinclair filling station, and a lot at 2824 Andrews drive, a block from the intersection of Peachtree and Andrews drive, Parkway in Druid Hills in the 1800 block and the yard of the DeKalb County Red Cross chapter house on Sycamore.

Plans being drawn by a landscape architect call for practically every shrub in Atlanta. But the garden club offers a list of suggestions for gardeners who plan to contribute.

house, the customary procedure, "to discuss the urgent state of affairs with regard to the defense of Singapore and Malaya, and to ask for assurances that everything possible is being done by the government."

U-Boat Takes 22 Lives in Torpedo Sinking Off North Carolina

Another U. S. Tanker Blasted By Submarines

Coastal Vessel Struck Without Warning; 13 Men Rescued.

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 19.—(P)—Flame covered waters were believed today to have claimed the lives of 22 crewmen of a United States tanker sunk in a torpedo attack off the Atlantic coast while others of the crew of 35 brought ashore accounts of a grim fight with "the strength born of the knowledge of certain death if we failed."

The tanker, the 6,635-ton Allan Jackson, of the Standard Oil Company, survivors said "seemed to be burning in the middle and there was fire everywhere" a few moments after a torpedo struck amidships as the vessel was en route to New York yesterday off the North Carolina coast.

The sinking of the tanker was announced by Naval authorities late last night, but details were withheld until today.

Harrowing Experience. Seven of the 13 men known to have survived the sinking told of battling desperately to keep from being sucked into the propeller of the ship which continued to churn as the vessel sank. They were brought here on an unnamed vessel after spending six hours in an open boat. The rescue ship also brought in hospital cases and four bodies.

It was a defiant seven men, in spite of their harrowing experiences, who spoke of the "lousy" attackers who "stabs in the dark." One of the survivors, O. M. May, an able seaman from Panama City, Fla., said he was going to join the Navy and "get a crack" at the enemy.

The desperate struggle against suction waters and flames was told by Rolf Clausen, boatswain, who was in charge of the only lifeboat which managed to clear the blazing tanker. He was in the mess shack having a cup of coffee when the first shock was felt.

"I ran out on deck," he related, "and then there was another explosion, the ship seemed to be parting in the middle and there was fire everywhere."

Single Boat Lowered. "The No. 3 lifeboat in the stern was being lowered. I jumped in and we managed to get her down after some little trouble."

"Then we had a scare that was a real scare," he continued. "The propeller was still turning and we had to battle desperately to keep from being sucked in. Several times I thought that we would be pulled into the blades and ground to death, but everyone aboard realized the danger and we were strong with the strength born of the knowledge of certain death if we failed."

"God, I hope I never have to go through an experience like that again."

The lifeboat contained eight men all told, but one of their number, Chief Engineer Thomas E. Hutchins, was injured. After the boat cleared the threatening propeller section, it picked up Stephen Verbonich, radio operator, who was swimming from the slick of flaming oil which in a few moments had spread in every direction.

"We had another battle on our hands avoiding the fire on the water," Clausen continued.

Flames Everywhere. "It seemed that the flames were everywhere and in a short time the sea was lighted for miles in every direction. We had to be very careful since the boat was covered with crude oil, which contained about 70 per cent gasoline. We knew that if we came in contact with the flames that she would catch fire and we would die."

While maneuvering to escape the burning oil slick, they saw a small white light in the distance. "It must have been the submarine, but we couldn't see anything but the light and were not sure," Clausen said. "I kept the men at the oars for more than an hour before rigging the sail. "I could have set the sail before, but I figured that since the men were wet and cold the best they could do was work. Finally they were exhausted."

Clausen related that the party set a westward course and named lookouts for passing vessels. "About four hours after the torpedoing we sighted a vessel," he said. "At first we didn't signal her for fear that she might be the submarine, then we decided to make our position known and fired the Very (flare) pistol."

Rescuers Cautious. Apparently the rescue vessel was not overly anxious to make contact with the lifeboat and desired to be convinced of her identity. Clausen then used a flashlight to send a message in Morse and the rescue vessel stood by and picked them up.

"We brought the lifeboat alongside and crawled up on rescue nets."

The vessel later picked up Captain F. W. Kretschmer, master of the Jackson, who was floating and swimming and trying to support himself on a round board. He had been in the water six hours and had suffered an arm injury.

Still later the vessel picked up Melvin A. Rand and Boris A. Voronoff, the second and third mates, who were found supporting themselves on a plank about 25 feet long. They told of the death of the fourth mate, whom they had found swimming just outside of the oil slick. They lashed him on a plank, but after a couple of hours they noticed he appeared to be dead. Attempts to revive their companion failed and they cut the body free.

Others rescued from the lifeboat, in addition to Clausen, May and Hutchins, were Ross F. Terrell, able seaman; Teague F. Burke, storekeeper; Aracelio Lopez, messman; Elmo E. Burden, oiler, and Jeremiah A. Donovan.

The injured, in addition to Captain Kretschmer, Hutchins, Rand and Voronoff, were Stephen Verbonich, radio operator, and Randolph H. Larson, able seaman, who was picked up by a rescue vessel near the scene of the sinking.

Dead Identified. The dead brought ashore were identified as W. A. Hoerle, third engineer; H. Brown, seaman; Domingo Pinerio, fireman, and Carl Z. Webb, oiler.

The Navy did not have the home addresses of any of the survivors.

Every licensed officer on the stricken ship was either injured or lost. The survivors said the tanker was unarmed and that no attempt was made by the submarine crew to either board the craft or take prisoners.

An officer on the bridge, crewmen said, sighted the first torpedo when it broke water about 150 yards from the tanker. A desperate effort to avoid the torpedo failed, and then it crashed into the tanker about midship. No one here saw the second torpedo, but a second explosion was heard within a couple of minutes after the first. Flames quickly enveloped the entire deck and there was barely time for the launching of a single lifeboat.

Henry Dowling Is Honored by Veterans Here

Sworn in as Commander of Georgia Division on 93d Birthday.

Heard by the other four surviving veterans in the Confederate Soldiers' Home, General Henry Taylor Dowling, yesterday acknowledged congratulations upon his ninety-third birthday and his new honor. He was sworn in officially as commander of the Georgia division, United Confederate Veterans, the men who used to make such a brave showing in Memorial Day parades.

Not so many are left—and they don't footlog it from Baker street to Oakland cemetery any more. Let's see, General Lee, whose 135th birthday was marked yesterday in Southern states, surrendered in 1865—77 years ago. Even if a youngster of 16—and there were many—had enlisted in that final year, he would be 93 now.

General Dowling was mighty proud of having the same birthday as Robert E. Lee and so expressed himself. He was still more proud of commanding the veterans of Georgia.

Young Dowling enlisted at 16, six months before Appomattox, in the First Florida Infantry. He believes he is the sole survivor of that outfit.

Robert Lee Avery, one of a fast dwindling galaxy of old-fashioned southern orators, gave an address on Lee, placing him second only to Washington. He spoke of the many noted sons Virginia had contributed to the nation—Jefferson, Madison, Monroe and Patrick Henry—but he ranked Lee ahead of all of them.

Daughters of the Confederacy sponsored the ceremonies. Atlanta banks and state capital offices observed the day as a holiday. Flags adorned business street walks. Otherwise, business went on as usual.

Australians Stabilize Line Near Singapore
SINGAPORE, Jan. 19.—(P)—British battlelines drawn across a confused tangle of Malayan rubber groves, jungle and rice paddies swayed backward today to meet new Japanese infiltrations but fighting Australians thrown into the battle for Singapore three days ago declared they had stabilized the front anew.

The Australians reported they had beaten off attack after attack and everywhere were holding their lines.

Infiltration Tactics. A British communiqué said the Japanese progressively enlarged their foothold south of the Muar river by the infiltration tactics with which they have reached into numerous west Malayan coast inlets and bypaths. As a result, the British lines were readjusted southward to meet the menace to the left flank.

Inland, along the central Malayan railway, where the Australians first clashed with the Japanese last Friday, the communiqué for the first time mentioned the "Segment front."

Segamat is 15 miles south of Gemas on the border of Negri Sembilan and Johore states, where this first clash took place.

It was thus along a front not much more than 90 to 95 miles from Singapore island that the Australians claimed to have repelled the Japanese advance, at least for the time, in the face of heavy pressure.

Australians Holding. (Major General Gordon Bennett, Australian commander, was quoted in a Melbourne dispatch as reporting to War Minister Francis Forde that his troops, originally put in the right end of the line at Gemas, were rushed to the left wing in the Muar area "to stabilize the position."

"Where Indian troops have been forced to give ground..." ("Almost immediately after the Australians had taken up positions the enemy launched a vigorous tank attack which was beaten off by our troops. The enemy lost eight tanks.")

OPA May Peg Prices of Produce
BELLEAIR, Fla., Jan. 19.—(P)—A representative of the Office of Price Administration told leaders of the fruit and vegetable industry here today that produce prices are 30 per cent higher than a year ago and that price control may be necessary to prevent further rises.

"Nothing must be permitted to interfere with the ability of consumers to secure all the fresh fruits and vegetables they need and to pay for them without undue hardship," Lawrence S. Martin told the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association.

"At the time of the attack on Pearl Harbor retail prices of fresh fruits and vegetables already were 3 per cent above those of a year earlier. Oranges in retail stores were about 35 per cent higher; potatoes, onions and cabbage, 40 per cent higher; green beans, 97 per cent higher."

Naval Air Base Seaman Beaten By Policeman

Hornsby, Navy Officials Are Investigating Incident.

An alleged brutal beating of a 22-year-old seaman, first class, last Saturday night by Patrolman W. F. Stevens was being investigated yesterday by Police Chief W. A. Hornsby and officials of the Naval base at Camp Gordon.

Though he has not completed his investigation, Chief Hornsby said he will prefer charges against Stevens and bring the patrolman to trial before the police committee.

Indignation at the manner in which the seaman, in uniform, was smashed over the head with a blackjack by Stevens was expressed yesterday by Naval officers, several organizations including the Navy League, and many individuals.

Claims Self-Defense. Investigators for the Naval Reserve base declared witnesses told them that the seaman attempted to go into Sanford's dance hall at 332 1-2 West Peachtree street last Saturday night after having had several drinks, and that he was bled over the head several times by Officer Stevens who arrested him.

In a report to Hornsby, Stevens said the seaman had hit him first and that he used the blackjack in self-defense after he had hurt his right hand striking the sailor.

The seaman was treated at Grady hospital for his injuries and is confined to the hospital at the Reserve base with numerous bruises and contusions about the head. Officers at the base said his head was badly swollen and bleeding when he was brought in.

Had Beer. They reported that the seaman weighs only 128 pounds, and had been sick and in the hospital with rheumatism and arthritis. Hornsby said Policeman Stevens weighs about 145 or 150. He said the officer had been with the force two years and had never been in trouble before.

"If this officer is in the wrong, we will find it out and he will be punished," Hornsby said. The chief said he has some more reports to get before he formally files charges against Stevens.

A witness to the affair at the dance hall told Navy investigators that Officer Stevens was carrying the seaman down the stairway when he suddenly slammed the uniformed boy into the wall and then hit him over the head several times with his blackjack.

Officer Claims Attack. This witness asserted that two other policemen helped Stevens "beat the seaman," though in his report Stevens stated he was the one who hit the boy with his blackjack.

Stevens said Officer C. J. Harris called him to arrest the sailor at the dance hall and that as he was taking the youth down the stairs the seaman grabbed him by the belt and hit him in the stomach and cursed him. He said he hit the seaman with his hand and hurt it and then used his blackjack in self-defense. He asserted the seaman fought all the way to the call box and that he, Stevens, had to call Officer Perkins to help him hold the boy until they could put him in the wagon.

Statement Denied. Members of the base patrol reported to their commander that one city policeman in the desk lieutenant's office declared: "He ought to have been beaten more than he was," when they went to get the seaman.

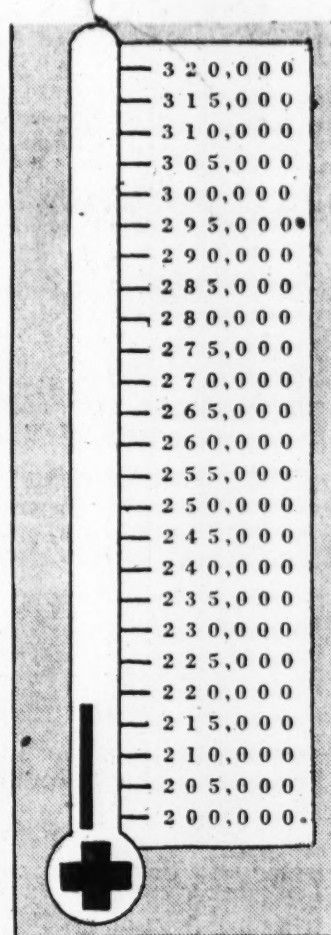

Lieutenant M. C. Williams, who was on duty at the time, denied that this was said.

Hornsby appointed Assistant Chief A. J. Holcombe and Lieutenant F. L. Tippen to investigate the matter. They reported that Dr. Hugh Hailey said the seaman's skull was not fractured and he did not suffer a concussion.

Washington-to-Memphis Highway Is Proposed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(P)—A four-lane military highway from Washington, D. C., to Memphis through the Tennessee valley was proposed today in a bill by Representative Rankin, Democrat, Mississippi.

The road would extend along the entire length of the present Lee highway "for protection of the Tennessee valley, as well as for the transportation of war materials to and from that area."

"This highway is already four-lane and built up to standard through a large portion of Virginia," Rankin said, "but it is necessary to complete it on through the Tennessee valley and on the Mississippi river, in order to guarantee adequate facilities to meet all emergencies."

Hoover's War Secretary Sent On Secret Trip

Hurley, Already Out of Country, To Be Brigadier.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Colonel Patrick J. Hurley, former secretary of war under President Hoover and a World War veteran, was nominated today by President Roosevelt as a brigadier general.

At the same time, Hurley's office disclosed that the 39-year-old Oklahoman already had left the country under sealed orders. The White House declined to announce Hurley's assignment but said that he would not be a line officer.

Mr. Roosevelt also sent the nomination of William S. Knudsen to the senate for the rank of lieutenant general. Knudsen, former director of the Office of Production Management, was chosen by the chief executive to take charge of the Army's war production and procurement program. He also will serve as a member of the War Production Board, headed by Donald M. Nelson.

In World War I

Hurley saw action in the first World War at Alsace-Meuse, Meuse-Argonne and St. Mihiel and was cited for gallantry in action. He entered the service as a captain, his rank in the Oklahoma National Guards, and rose to the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Following the war he served in the judge advocate's office and as a representative of the Army of Occupation in Germany negotiated a settlement with the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg for claims arising from army activities. On his return to the United States he became a colonel in the Reserve Corps and returned to the practice of law.

Barnes Nominated

Hurley entered the Hoover administration as assistant secretary of war in 1929 and became secretary upon the death of James W. Good. In 1933 he began practicing law in Washington.

Brigadier Julian F. Barnes was nominated to be a major general, and William E. Kwall to be a judge of the United States customs court in New York.

Kwall is a former member of congress from Oregon. The White House said he was recommended by Senate Minority Leader McNary. E. Kwall nominated McNary for the Republican vice presidential candidacy at the Philadelphia convention in 1940.

War Workers' Payment Plan Wins Approval

F. D. R. Okays 300 Millions for Aid During Conversion Period.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—President Roosevelt laid today approved a budget estimate of $300,000,000 for weekly unemployment benefit payments to workers displaced in private industries during their conversion to war production.

Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, made the announcement on leaving the White House after a conference with the President and Budget Director Harold D. Smith.

McNutt said the President would send the estimate to the house tomorrow with a letter of transmittal to Speaker Rayburn.

The benefit plan, still to be put in the form of a bill, would provide a maximum of $24 a week for 26 weeks to an estimated 4,000,000 men. The federal government would contribute the whole $24 where workers are not now receiving state unemployment compensation.

In the case of workers who do receive such state aid, the government will make up the difference. Workers receiving the benefits would be required to enter a 26-week training course for war industry under the plan.

Auto Tag Sales Pass Record Set in 1941

14,019 Increase on January 15 Is Reported by State.

Georgians apparently aren't planning to trade their automobiles any time soon.

This prediction was borne out yesterday by statistics of the state motor vehicle division, which sold 14,019 more tags through January 15 of this year than it sold through the same date last year.

Even though the federal government is toying with the suggestion that bicycles be substituted for cars as a mode of transportation, car owners are crowding into the state capitol every day for tags and jingling the state's cash registers.

Through January 15 of 1941 the tag department sold only 55,351 license plates, but this year the total for the same period climbed to 69,370.

There seemed to be an even greater comparative increase in the amount of money taken in so far. Revenue for the 15-day period this year totaled $305,063.99, as compared with $191,544.48 for the corresponding period a year ago.

W. L. Joiner, director of the division, was baffled. He estimated that if the present rate keeps up Georgia will register more automobiles than it did last year, which was the peak.

Pearl Harbor Plight Laid to Expert Policy

Colonel Denies Disobedience Charge in Court-martial.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 19.—(AP)—A veteran air corps officer in a public speech blamed the Pearl Harbor disaster on the American public's sanctioning of a policy of sending aircraft to Axis foes, witnesses testified at his general court-martial today.

Colonel H. C. Kress Muhlenberg, first high-ranking officer summoned before a court-martial since the United States declared war on the Axis, denied he disobeyed orders by discussing the foreign policy of the United States.

Defense Head Plans Shake-Up In Eight States

Smoother Functioning in Activities Pledged in 'Fresh Start.'

A "shake-up" of civilian defense activities in the eight southern states of the Fourth Corps Area was promised yesterday by Bernard F. Dickmann, United States inspector general of the Office of Civilian Defense.

He was appointed Saturday as acting director for the region. He succeeded Dr. Joseph C. Menendez, of New Orleans, who, it was announced, has resigned.

Dickmann said there had been "laxity somewhere"—he didn't know just where—and pledged a "fresh start" without wasting a minute "condemning the past."

He sandwiched his statements between executive sessions of Army and Navy officers and civilian defense leaders. The meeting was called by Dickmann. Governors of the eight states were invited, but none was present.

Quick Training Essential. Indications were that the promised shake-up would be concerned with procedural problems in an effort to achieve smoother functioning of civilian defense activities from top to bottom.

Some state leaders complained after the meeting that they had encountered delays and hitches in their dealings with Washington, but none was willing to be quoted.

Wholly aside from the question of administrative snags, Dickmann warned that quick training of civilian defense workers is essential for the protection of the south's many vulnerable cities, particularly those in coastal areas. "Action is what we need," he said.

He said much of the meeting was devoted to "candid expressions of the laxity of activity throughout the whole Fourth Corps area" and expressed confidence that out of this exchange of views would come concrete steps to accelerate the program.

Army Officers Present. Among those present were eight Army officers who have just completed a three-week training course at the Edgefield, N. J., arsenal in handling incendiary and explosive bombs. Each of them will be assigned to a state in the area to direct similar training for civilian volunteers.

A touch of drama was added to the session when the conferees received a newspaper clipping of the torpedoing of an oil tanker off the North Carolina coast. Dickmann said this should drive home the urgency of the civilian defense program.

Commander Frank D. Pryor, of the Charleston Navy Yard, commander's staff, asserted that, regardless of the imminence of air attacks, trained civilian volunteers are required to cope with threatened sabotage to industrial plants and public utilities.

Sabotage Problem. He said the danger of bombing raids may seem "somewhat vague" but "the question of sabotage is present with us every single day." Although the civilian workers cannot expect active duty immediately, they are needed as a pool to draw from in the event of an emergency, he added.

Describing the area within 300 miles of the coast as most liable to attack, Major O. H. Kyster, of the Army's third interceptor command at Tampa said organization of an aircraft warning service had been completed along the Atlantic seaboard and was rapidly nearing completion in the Gulf area.

Reports of the different state officials indicated a quickening interest in civilian defense preparations since the attack of Pearl Harbor, but Dickmann said he felt activity had been lagging too much in all the states.

Representatives of all eight states, Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Florida were present. Others present included members of the area's board of civilian protection and the civilian defense volunteer participation committee.

Florida Wind Storm

Damages Truck Crop

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Jan. 19.—(AP)—A slashing wind and rain storm accompanied by some hail did damage to vegetable crops in Broward and Palm Beach counties estimated by B. E. Lawton, county farm agent, at $2,000,000.

The disturbance, of local nature, destroyed approximately 90 per cent of vegetable crops in the two counties, he said today. Some 5,000 farm laborers were thrown out of employment.

Theft of $600 from a safe in offices of the McGuire Realty Company in the Peachtree Arcade was reported to police yesterday. Police theorized the yegg was an amateur, as the combination had been knocked off the safe.

Lieutenant Stanley Jones, Georgia naval recruiting officer, spoke last night on "Vacancies and Opportunities in the Navy" at the American Legion meeting in College Park.

First Red Cross class in the fifth district was organized last night at a meeting at Pine Station No. 19, with more than 200 citizens attending. A class of 30 was expected but nearly three times that many volunteered, Mrs. S. C. Hornbuckle, in charge of organization work, said. The group heard Mrs. E. L. Caveny, of Honolulu, describe the Pearl Harbor raid. The demolition bomb was studied at the session.

HONOR MAN—Oscar Hall Cantrell, son of Mrs. Winnie Hall Cantrell, Sylvester, Ga., teacher, has been designated honor man in his flight training class at the Naval Reserve Aviation Base at Chamblee. Young Cantrell attended Sylvester High school and Brewton-Parker Junior College. He has a brother, James Edgar Cantrell, who is undergoing flight training at the base now.

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 19.—(AP)—British naval aircraft scored torpedo hits on a large Axis tanker and a destroyer in the central Mediterranean Saturday night, the RAF announced tonight.

The attacks were made successfully despite a heavy rainstorm, and both vessels came to a standstill, the communiqué said.

Don't Hoard, First Lady Asks; She Sets Example for Nation

By RUTH COWAN.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Anyone who is hoarding soap, sugar, silk stockings or auto tires is just kidding himself (or herself) in the opinion of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The reason: It just isn't going to be possible to hoard enough to last through the war, Mrs. Roosevelt in her role of assistant civilian defense director indicated today at her press conference.

Sooner or later the hoarder is going to have to face the shortage, she said. And it is a lot more chummy to get into the boat with the rest of the citizenry at first.

Mrs. Roosevelt is trying to practice what she is preaching. She was wearing black cotton stockings. She said she hasn't bought any new tires for her own personal car. She is trying to use the White House official cars as little as possible.

Orders Same Things

Her bills look just the same as far as quantities are concerned—same number of pecks of potatoes, same dozens of eggs, same number of pounds of flour—but the prices have gone up, she said.

From her explanation the White House has to be run on a short-order plan. There has to be a reserve of food on hand.

If the President is right in the middle of discussing something with a dozen people and it comes time to eat, he is apt to say: "How about staying for lunch?" or Mrs. Roosevelt is liable to bring 12 home with her.

The housekeeper may have prepared only for two, but it hardly would be protocol to send down to the corner grocery when a guest like Prime Minister Churchill arrived for dinner with but a few hours' notice—as he did. Anyway, there isn't a grocery near by.

Bicycle Forgotten. Asked what she ever did with the bicycle she once said she had, Mrs. Roosevelt replied it was still at the Hyde Park (N. Y.) home, but that she never had got around to learning to ride it. Anyway, bicycles require tires, she added.

She intimated she knew it was going to be hard for this motorized nation to get back to the horse-and-buggy age. But there are going to be a lot of things that may be a bit tough. Walking, for example.

She spoke of a woman she knew who used to walk eight miles daily to and from some place for some reason. But the woman did it, and it may have to be done again, she stressed.

Prompt action is necessary in replying to the attractive offers in the Want Ad section of The Constitution.

Keep Fit—For Victory

When historians of the future tell the complete story of the present days' world struggle for freedom and the survival of things decent, they will, we pray, tell the story of an America that, though late, came into the conflict to decide the issue in the cause of right.

That story should tell of a young continent, as continents go, peopled by a people imbued with the glorious spirit and strength of youth. America must march out of the west, young and tall and strong and brave and bright. America must rid herself of all contamination of decadence and emerge, ready for the conflict, fit in physique and in spirit to lead the world to the better days that are to follow our victory and our peace.

To do this it behooves all Americans, young and old, men and women, fit and unfit, to do their utmost to make themselves fit. Every strong man or woman is an asset to the nation, every weakling is a burden.

We have read, during recent years, how hundreds of thousands of young Germans made themselves physically strong for war through gymnasia, through marching clubs and through games.

America starts on the race for physical fitness well. For this is a nation of sports lovers. And, during recent years, more and more of us have deserted the ranks of mere spectators, onlookers, and become active participants in some form of sport.

Baseball, basketball, football, hockey, skiing, skating, running, hiking, badminton, golf, equestrianism, swimming, handball, tennis and scores of other sports have all done their part in making America a nation physically fit. The youth of America today is far finer, physically, than for many generations past.

Yet we fall far short of that physical condition we should have, we need, for a nation at war. Too many have neglected their bodies while engaged in sedentary occupation, too many have dissipated and wasted their heritage of health.

We cannot start too soon, each one of us, to reclaim that health which should be ours. If we are to serve our country in her hours of need. Whether as soldier, sailor or airman in the armed forces; whether as war factory workers, as civilian defense workers, as sustainers of the home morale, we need and must have bodies in as fine fitness as we can make them.

Recreation facilities are needed now, more than ever before. The National Recreation Association, with headquarters at 315 Fourth avenue, New York, has issued a pamphlet titled "Fitness for Victory," which tells of the many avenues by which America can strengthen her sinews for the struggle ahead. In that pamphlet is a list of cities, Atlanta among them, which provide public means for games and recreation.

That is good, but we must have more.

Let us, for instance, not repine at rationed cars and tires, but let us learn again to walk upon the feet God gave us and thus to make ourselves stronger and better fitted for the task.

And, while we perfect our bodies, let us remember, above all else, to keep our spirits free and strong. Free in the love of liberty and strong in the knowledge of the righteousness of the cause for which we fight.

Cotton, a War Essential

It now appears the American government, in buying up surplus cotton a few years ago and storing it to protect the market, acted more wisely than it knew.

For cotton has, almost overnight, become an essential war material and that same surplus cotton held by this government now becomes an essential war store.

All have known that cotton is used largely in the manufacture of explosives. However, it is essential for war in many other ways than this. For uniforms, for clothing for civilian populations, the warring nations cannot do without cotton, must have much greater supplies than needed in peace time.

It is reported from England that cotton textile mills, which had been closed earlier in the war as non-essential, are being reopened. Output of cotton goods has fallen below needs in Britain and, to add to the new demand, Russia is asking for cotton clothing and cotton uniforms. Too, the supply of textiles that formerly came from the Pacific and some other parts of the world has been cut off because of the war.

It would be unwise to permit the price of cotton to get out of hand. That would be merely contributory to currency inflation. It will, therefore, be necessary, probably, to set a "ceiling price" for cotton, along with other staple commodities.

However, it is good to know that the great southern crop is once again taking its rightfully important place in world economy and that, before the war has progressed far, the surplus of stored cotton will be consumed, thus removing a long present depressant condition from the cotton markets of the future.

—LET'S GO! AMERICA!—

It is the consensus of the better experts that Hitler firing his generals and buying a dream book will make for a shorter war.

—LET'S GO! AMERICA!—

Hitler and the Generals

Surmises that a rift has developed in Germany, with Hitler and his Nazi leaders on one side and the army generals of the Junker military caste upon the other, may have good evidence in support but they should not be regarded as anything but theoretic surmising, of no direct connection with our war against the Axis.

For we must always remember it is not Hitler, as an individual, it is not any particular group in any of the Axis powers we fight. It is the entire Axis itself we have to fight and to defeat.

Whether Hitler holds supreme command, or whether the Prussian generals remain in full control, it is still the German army and the German air force we have to smash. The objective of that German power is the same, whether Hitler or Von Brauchitsch is in command. That objective is world conquest.

The retirement of Von Brauchitsch, the mysterious death of Field Marshal von Reichenau and the similarly strange death of General Ernst Udet, the rumored retirement or removal of still other German generals, does indicate a difference of view among Germany's leaders. But that difference of view affects only the means to be employed. Both groups desire the same goal, complete conquest of the earth and establishment of a world system under the heel of the self-appointed super race of Germans.

If we permit ourselves to believe that things are today going on behind the scenes in Germany which will be beneficial to our cause, and if we permit our hopes for victory to be based, even in part, upon this belief, we are directly playing into the hands of Hitler and his followers. They would like nothing better than to induce over-confidence among us, by these means or any others.

Hitler may die. The German Junkers caste may be eliminated. Mussolini may disappear from the knowledge of mankind and even Japan's Emperor Hirohito and his blood-thirsty army chieftains may be done away with. Even then, though, our task is not complete.

For, until we teach to the peoples who permitted such leadership, to the arrogant Germans, the barbaric Japs and the woebegone Italians that they must never again allow the lust for conquest to make them participants or tools in aggressive war, we can never know the peace for which we seek.

For, after all, any nation gets the type of leadership it desires. Germany approves Hitler and his methods, or Hitler would not keep the hold he has upon the German people.

Italians still see in Mussolini a new Caesar, come to lead them to a new empire of power. Japan still blindly follows the ruthless army chieftains and still bows the knee and worships the name of Hirohito.

They may wrangle among themselves on individual leadership and minor points of method. But our task is to destroy, forever, the foul germ of militaristic aggression from the concepts of humanity.

Georgia Editors Say:

JUNK MATERIALS NEEDED.

(From the Hawkinsville Dispatch and News.) Scrap iron, tin cans and paper must be saved by an America which laughed with contempt when Japan purchased tin after tin of scrap from this country to build its war machine.

We sold this scrap to Japan at ridiculously low prices, we thought. We didn't know that the prices set then were only the part the Japs paid, that we would pay the balance ourselves when war came between the two countries.

Today, we need such scrap to feed our own war machine which is to wipe away our mistakes in dealing with the Japs in the past. The Hawkinsville Garden Club has assumed the responsibility for collecting waste paper and tin cans. They have arranged for storage in each section of town. Periodically, this scrap will be sent away to be used in our war effort.

A telephone call to one of the garden club committees will bring someone to collect waste paper and tin cans. Eventually it will be used for the biggest job we have on hand: the defeat of the Axis.

Give the Garden Club your co-operation.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

NAZIS BUILDING BOMBERS WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Another reason why British and American officials are convinced Hitler is planning to strike some early powerful new blow is the receipt of authentic reports that the Nazis have been working day and night on a huge building program of long-range four-motored bombers.

The reports were brought back by responsible persons who were in Germany and other Nazi-occupied sections of Europe before the declaration of war cut off normal channels of communications.

Linked with the bomber construction program are reports from the same source that the Germans are building 3,000-foot runways on air fields in occupied France and elsewhere.

Runways of that length, military people point out, are not needed for the normal operations of the Luftwaffe. The only conclusion to be drawn is that they are designed for the accommodation of bombers comparable to the American flying Fortresses, whose use by the RAF last year brought new terrors to cities far in the German interior.

6,000-MILE RANGE The flying range of the new long-distance German bombers is said to be about 6,000 miles with a moderate bomb load. While this is enough to get them across the Atlantic and back under favorable conditions, the primary purpose of the four-motored bombers is thought to be aimed at North Atlantic shipping, rather than raids on our eastern seaboard cities.

They would have enough range to send them far out over the Atlantic in search of American and British naval vessels engaged in patrol or convoy duty. If produced in sufficient quantities, they have the possibility of greatly interfering with our shipping movements.

WHERE THEY COULD STRIKE Based in southeastern Germany and other Axis-held areas, the planes could fan out far over North Africa, the Mediterranean, and even the Indian ocean. Using Nazi-occupied regions of Russia, they could also strike far back of the Soviet lines at the transplanted industrial centers in the Urals. Against any part of England they would be able to carry much heavier bomb loads than anything used by the Germans heretofore.

The German air force has been strangely inactive for several months. No bombs have dropped on London since the Russian invasion last June. Only sporadic attacks have been made on other sections of England. Since the beginning of winter, the Luftwaffe hasn't been much in evidence in Russia.

REASONS FOR LULL Two reasons are assigned to all of this. First, that equipment is being repaired, collected and put in shape for some tremendous surprise blow—that the past inactivity is the lull before a new storm. Second, that a shortage of fuel has forced a suspension of wholesale air activities until the Nazis could catch up on their supplies. Certainly they were compelled to consume a great deal more gasoline and lubricating oils in the Russian campaign than they ever dreamed of.

As a third factor, the Russians have, undoubtedly, put a serious dent in the Nazi air machine, although Hitler's reserves in planes is still acknowledged to be more than up to his requirements.

ANNOYS HIGH COMMAND The oil and gasoline shortage is reported to be particularly annoying to the German high command. Large quantities are needed not only for the war machine, but for the supporting industries as well. Requirements for new sources of supply are supposed to have been one of the chief guiding influences behind the decision to invade Russia. Instead of getting a new supply, huge reserves were consumed in the fruitless effort.

The necessity for conserving supplies would be all the more great if the Nazis are planning a new all-out air attack over the Atlantic or elsewhere. Information regarding the new four-engine long-distance bomber program makes it a possibility more to be reckoned with than ever.

Judging by past standards, the Nazi technique does not call for introducing the new bombers until they have been turned out in large numbers. Hence, the size of the reported construction program is thought to be considerable.

MUCH DEPENDS ON RUSSIA Whether they actually strike the expected new blow or not may depend on what happens in Russia. There is still the possibility that the Red army may turn the German retreat into a rout. Some high military authorities in Britain have been quoted as holding this view. The next two or three weeks should tell. If a winter line is stabilized, anything in the way of a Nazi surprise move may be looked for.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

Let's Change

The Name.

I suppose, in literal sense, the war in which we are engaged is a war of defense. We didn't start it, it was thrust upon us.

It is a war for defense of everything we consider worth while in life. In defense of our way of life, of our political philosophy, of our place in the scheme of world things.

It is a war, too, in defense of those religious faiths we hold most dear, the faith in the ultimate triumph of brotherhood and universal love under the banner of Jesus Christ.

It is a war of defense against outlaw nations who worship the god of militaristic might, who dream always of a conquest through seas of blood.

It is, in short, a war of defense against forces of brutal evil, to defend the decent thought and ideal of things of humanity.

But, even if it is a war for defense, in the truest word, we can only successfully defend by making an all-out, smash 'em to bits, offensive. If we do not win the victory, through offense, we have lost on defense too.

So, I am in favor of changing the name of "Defense" stamps and bonds, to either "Victory" or "Offense" stamps and bonds. It would be more inspiring, better for the old morale, when you walk up to the cashier's window and say, "Gimme a couple of Victory bonds, please."

—LET'S GO! AMERICA!—

Study

Your Maps.

It is, by now, becoming rather an old story to advise the people of America to study their maps of the war fronts—which means, the maps of the world. For there is no place on this globe today, which is not affected by and which does not affect, in greater or less degree, the progress of the war.

So many people have been asking why reinforcements have not been sent to McArthur in the Philippines, to the Singapore front, to the Dutch East Indies.

Well, my answer is, we don't know that they haven't been sent. And it is quite right we should not know, at this stage of the war. But my second answer is, look at your map and try to get some concept of the distances in the far Pacific.

There's your understanding better the problem and the element of time unavoidably involved.

It takes transports from our Pacific coast ports three weeks to reach Australia, at the very least. Another two weeks from there to the Dutch East Indies. Similar periods of time to the Philippines or Singapore. And you must remember that not only men, fighting men, have to be transported, but all their supplies and equipment, too.

Not only guns and ammunition in ample quantities, but food and gasoline and bandages and hospital staffs and all the innumerable items that go through the quartermaster corps. All these supplies have, too, to be kept up in steady flow.

And therein, too, lies the answer to "where retreat our Pacific fleet." If we are sending help to the eastern theater of war, the routes of supply have to be kept open, have to be patrolled and made safe, just as the Atlantic has to be patrolled to keep open the route from America to Britain and to Russia's port of Archangel.

It is a complicated job and a tremendous job, supplying fighting men in the field, and it is made many times more complicated when the distances involved include the far reaches of the Pacific ocean.

Are Our Men Ready?

Again, there arises the question, how many properly trained men have we, at this moment, to throw into battle? You know, of course, that men without sufficient training are woefully handicapped facing the enemy.

We have an army now numbering approximately 1,800,000. But it must be remembered many of these have been in the service only a month or two or three. Few of the selective service men have yet had one year's experience in the uniform.

And we haven't, yet, enough equipment for all those men. It takes equipment and munitions in plenty, you know, to familiarize hundreds of thousands of men with rifles, machine guns, anti-aircraft guns, big artillery, etc. etc.

We are going to have an army of 3,600,000 before the end of this year. Many of them will serve overseas.

And when you give careful thought to the total task of training, equipping, transporting, maintaining those men, you realize more truly than ever the job that faces us, under the leadership of Donald Nelson and the army chiefs.

Eager

Taxpayers

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Now that the income tax has become a democratic institution, affecting some seven million new subjects in income brackets as low as $800 a year, the Treasury seriously hopes to banish from the public mind the concept of the taxpayer created by Will Johnstone, the cartoonist, who pictures him as a scrawny little man wearing nothing but a barrel held up by suspenders and always in a hot fury over the waste of his tax money by public officers.

Our friends at the Treasury believe the new members of the lodge will be eager to pay their dues not only to buy the tools of war but to stand off inflation. This is the first time the Treasury has seemed to care what the income taxpayer thought about anything. Always hitherto he was treated as a rich man who probably had stolen or inherited his money and the bureaucrats of the New Deal laughed raucously at his futile complaints. I remember an encounter with an ex-newspaperman who had been drafted into the long and extravagant war effort as an aid to Jim Taylor for duties mostly political who said rather mockingly: "Why don't you pay your income tax and quit squawking?"

I had paid my income tax and I was squawking because $6,000 a year of the taxes paid by me and others was being paid to a relative of a prominent idealist for decorating embassies abroad; $6,000 a year had been paid to Theodore (the man) Bilbo, a stranded Mississippi politician, to clip and paste newspaper items in scrapbooks, and to keep him off the neck of Pat Harrison; $10,000 was being paid to Jimmy Roosevelt to act as one of his father's secretaries and keep out of mischief and countless other high salaries were being paid to other personal and political friends and relatives of high personages as a sort of de luxe dole or handout or, not to fumble for a word, gratuity.

Everyone in Washington has personal knowledge of many such ill-disguised gifts of large salaries to individuals whose duties are only theoretical, nominal or unnecessary and the same generosity has been spread out over the country. Look in the local phone book of any fairly large city under the heading "U. S. Government" and observe the growth of government, part of which has been legitimate and natural but much of which represents nothing but political generosity and waste at the expense of the income taxpayer and those who had paid other taxes all along. A salary of $6,000 or $10,000 a year is no mere nickel. It is thick money.

Once Was a Class Tax

But under the old scale of brackets, the income tax was a class tax and those who paid it were deemed lucky to have that much income and poor sports to ask what was done with the money. And anyone who asked too insistently and clamorously could expect a call from one of the detective-accountants of the Internal Revenue who would go over all his personal items and even demand an explanation of his spending which were none of the Treasury's business, as well as of his earnings. This is literal truth. The income taxpayers were a small and politically friendless minority and the government itself created the figure in the barrel whom it is now desired to retire from the scene lest the new and much larger group of taxpayers come to regard the tax as a burden.

The Treasury people are correct in their belief that the new income taxpayers will be quite willing to pay the tax for war purposes. The old group has the same spirit and, with very few exceptions, has been willing all along to pay legitimate costs of government including the expense of new departments honestly intended to ease the nation over the long panic. But neither group will be happy to continue to support innumerable political press agents on better salaries than they ever were worth in private industry merely because they are politically right. Neither group will willingly contribute money out of earnings and go through the vexation of making out returns so that useless, extravagant and ornate government reports may be turned out in the form of bound books singing the praises of this or that cabinet member. And nobody will be more sensitive to waste or graft than those new taxpayers, hitherto exempt, who gladly shower down, say $25, with the understanding that they are paying for a war and then read that a Malcolm Cowley, identified as a poet and long identified with the Communist front, has suddenly been deemed indispensable to the war effort as an "analyst of defense information" at $8,000 a year which represents the entire income taxes of those $25-a-year taxpayers.

The angry little guy in the barrel should not typify the income taxpayer but it is up to the government to show him that his money is being spent for legitimate purposes.

'Dear God—A Pearl'

As I sit down to write this poem, My thoughts are all awash, I want to write of things good: (And things beautiful, like a pearl), And how can I do this, dear God, When I am in a middle And no one seems to care And churches closed, Bibles "lost," And minds upon the evil . . .

My grandmother said to pray, dear And this I've tried to do, But like so many times before, My prayers do not come true. Or so I seem to think, dear God. But perhaps I'm wrong, for I know I think you do not understand Your children's prayers, and heed. And so, dear God, this poem I hope you understand.

And so, dear God, I am sure You really have a plan To overcome this evil. To take an upper hand. And set this world upright again, Promoting peace and love.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

SUBS IN DIXIE Enemy submarines—German—are operating off the South Atlantic coast.

That means the Georgia coast along with the coastal sections of the Carolinas and Virginia.

An enemy ship is operating not more than two or three hundred miles from your front door . . . if you are a resident of Atlanta, or any city or town south of Atlanta.

The war has come closer. The crew of the tanker Allan James, sunk five minutes off the North Carolina coast, said submarines were "thick as catfish" in the water.

That is a phrase Georgians will recognize.

It means a heavy concentration of submarines has been ordered to our Atlantic waters in an effort to halt all supplies coming from South America, going there, and going to England.

The war has moved in on us. One of those submarines could shell a coastal city. Brunswick would be easy. They may not because they are smart enough not to wish to shake us out of the complacency. That is best expressed by the yawning "We'll-get-'em-as-soon-as-our-Army-and-Navy-get-going" spirit.

We still think this is an easy war. We still think that by some magic we'll soon blast the Japanese out of the Pacific. We still go along "as usual," thinking we'll wake up one morning and it will be all over just as a bad dream is all over as soon as one wakes.

You could get in your car and drive to within five minutes of a German submarine in about seven hours if you live in Atlanta. Less if you live south of Atlanta.

Does that make the war seem closer?

MORE TO COME There will be more sinkings. We have such a great curving coast line it is almost impossible to patrol it.

A submarine needs only to come up in the misty morning hours of dawn, stick up a periscope and have a look. If there is nothing in sight but a tanker or so and a coastal freighter—then the hunting is good. They can leisurely blow them out of the water or sink them with one torpedo each.

They then can scan the surface and move off to other hunting grounds.

If danger is near they can sink their victims, submerge and stay down there until dark comes before venturing back to the surface to charge their motors.

A submarine is about the safest ship in which to sail these days when warplanes are blasting surface ships. A submarine is a tough ship. They can take a lot of pounding and a lot of depth bombs if they have a few seconds in which to dive to 200 or 300 feet.

The Germans have the Italian subs in the Mediterranean ocean. They have some, maybe all, of the French submarines at work in their behalf. It is quite possible some of the submarines at work off our southern coast are from the French fleet.

The Germans can concentrate their submarines. This country and England must concentrate their vessels in convoys to England and in convoys to the Pacific. We haven't got much left for hunting out subs. We will have to depend on planes.

Our own Georgia coastal patrol may be ordered out on duty soon. A plane can spot a sub at a depth of 40 feet.

The subs know that. The sound, or the sight of a plane in the air makes them nervous and afraid.

WHAT BASES? The big question is—from where do they come? What are their bases?

It could be a "mother" ship—or several such ships to supply fuel and food. And torpedoes to replace those fired into ships off the Georgia and Carolina coasts.

It could be bases. But where? Where is there a country friendly enough to supply enemy submarines? We know that a little more than a year ago there were fuel ships going out from the Mexican coast to supply enemy subs. Today the Mexican government is friendly.

There may be one of the islands, lonely and uninhabited, which is being used as a base. Fuel could be stored there and supplied to subs by night.

There might be a base somewhere in the islands of the Caribbean sea.

Some harbor on the northern coast of South America may be hiding a supply ship.

The subs, the big ones, have good long ranges of 10,000 miles and up to 20,000. There are but a few of the latter. These probably are not mystery subs of great size and range but simply the average size sub, being supplied from a base on some lonely island from some bought-and-paid-for harbor. It could be that neutral ships, or ships camouflaged as the ship of some neutral country, could be acting as mother ships.

Whatever it

Well, life goes on, war or no war. Even night life. As I learned a few nights ago.

My night life is a pair of slippers, a magazine and a dog who insists on nosing it out of my vision so he can occupy my lap and attention.

But an evening or two ago I was hooked into a visit to "Atlanta After Dark," to paraphrase a favorite melodrama of my youth.

I discovered that Atlanta at night is rather an interesting spot. We were at the Paradise Room in the Henry Grady hotel, where Juddy Johnson, the plump master of ceremonies, was bossing a floor show and kidding the guests—some guests. Juddy knows who can take it and who can't.

Personally, I like the idea of carrying on—as long as you can carry it. The Gloomy Gus idea never appealed to me.

The Paradise Room was jammed. With people spending money. Well, why not, if they've got it? It doesn't matter a darn to the state of the nation whether John Q. Pilsonberry has the dollar or the Paradise Room has it. It's in circulation and doing its work.

Atlanta, I am told, and I plan to make some personal verifications, isn't the go-to-bed-at-nine town it used to be.

There are "night spots" where one—or preferably two—may dine, dance and drink. There's the Ansley Room and a spot at the Biltmore and a large and varied number of places on the highways.

Grand evening—and a slice of morning. But I'm not on a night club assignment, thank heaven. I think I'll go back to my book, my

The Judge Retires.

Judge Henry Revell has got lazy, the old son-of-a-gun. He has decided to quit the newspaper business and look after his "other interests," a news story states. The other interests, I assume, include possum hunting and eating and raising hell if his coffee is not hot enough or strong enough when he gets up in the morning.

Judge Revell has been editor, publisher and sole proprietor of the Meriwether Vindicator, down in Greenville, Ga., since who laid the rail, if I may use one of his own colloquialisms.

The Vindicator is even older than Judge Revell. It was founded by his father back in 1872, has always been in the family and has ever stood staunchly for free speech, a Supreme Divinity which rules the universe and the Democratic party—in the order named.

The judge has a pal. Or used to have, before his pal became absorbed in other interests. His pal was named Franklin D. Roosevelt, who became interested in Warm Springs, near Greenville, and decided to establish a sanitarium for infantile paralysis patients and also a great winter resort on Pine Mountain. But he got into politics, was elected Governor of New York and then got a bigger job. So he hasn't had much time in the last 12 years or so to josh with Judge Revell. Which is tough on both of them. Because the judge, with a bird dog yam, could make anybody forget such trivial troubles as a national budget.

"Vigilantes?"

Is we-uns got to organize a bunch of vigilantes, as in old California days, to deal with cattle thieves? This cow stealing is getting serious, brother.

From Cedarstown comes a story about cattle "rustling" in Polk county. Two cows stolen from Will Parrish's barn and another from a farm just below the Alabama line.

Readers of "westerns" and followers of them in two-dollar books—2 cents a day at the libraries—are familiar with the cattle rustlers of the plains in the grand old days. They'd do it with whole hands, decorated the brands and cleaned up. After a lot of shooting, perhaps.

It's different now, thanks to civilization. Today's cow thief uses a truck. He picks his cows—and I wish he'd pick them off the highway, lead them into a truck and is on his way—to a packing house. And sweet old Bossy isn't there next morning to provide milk and cream for the morning coffee.

Growers of Cotton Can Insure Crops

Fulton farmers were urged yesterday by the farm agent's office to take out the new cotton crop insurance by March 15, the last day on which it can be secured.

Insurance against crop failure for any reasonable cause beyond the farmer's control has been successful in the wheat area for the past three years, it was pointed out, but this is the first year it has been available to cotton producers.

Cotton planters may take out policies on their crop for 75 percent of the average yield, figured on the actual production for the past seven years. A different premium rate will be figured for each farm, based on the variation in yields for the seven-year period. Premiums may be paid with notes, payable in cotton or cash, due October 15.

Camelback Firms Urged To Keep Prices Down

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Price Administrator Leon Henderson today requested producers of camelback, a material used in tire retreading, to hold prices down to present market levels.

Establishment of the voluntary price ceiling, was designed to maintain market stability until a formal schedule of maximum prices, now in preparation, is issued.

The temporary ceilings cover the three grades of camelback which OPM has ruled are the only grades that may be manufactured hereafter.

Manufacturers were requested in telegrams not to charge more than 28 cents a pound for camelback containing 57 1-2 to 62 1-2 per cent crude rubber; 28 cents a pound for the grade containing 38 to 48 per cent crude rubber, and 18 cents a pound for the grade containing not over 20 per cent crude rubber.

TALMADGE IGNORES REQUEST FOR FACTS

Editor, Constitution: You will do me a favor if you will publish this exchange of telegrams with Governor Talmadge, as the press recently carried an inaccurate account of the circumstances attending my replacement on the Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia, given out by Governor Talmadge. An inaccurate account which he apparently does not care to correct.

E. ORMONDE HUNTER, Washington, D. C.

Telegram to Governor. Hon. Eugene Talmadge, Governor of Georgia, State Capitol, Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Governor: Please do me a favor and correct the statement you gave the press relative to the appointment of a person to succeed me on the Board of Regents. (1) Although I did offer to resign if you desired it, I asked for a leave of absence while in the Army. (2) I was not called as a reserve officer, but volunteered my services.

Perhaps small matters but they make a difference to me. Please wire me Monday.

E. ORMONDE HUNTER, Washington, D. C.

The Governor's Reply. E. Ormonde Hunter, Willard Hotel, Washington, D. C.

Received. I have just returned from Florida. On receipt your letter of resignation I immediately placed it on the minutes with my letter accepting it. I phoned Mr. Carey Arnett, who was on the Board of Education, and asked if he would resign from the Board of Education if I appointed him on Board of Regents. He immediately resigned from Board of Education and I appointed him on Board of Regents. I then immediately called J. C. Palmer, of Waynesboro, Ga., and appointed him on Board of Education to succeed Carey Arnett.

RAIL FREIGHT OFFICIAL AND PIPE LINE RATES

Editor, Constitution: The writer of the editorial, "Strange Attitude," in Saturday morning's Constitution apparently has not accepted at full value everything told him by the pipe line people and without any effort to learn the railroad public side. As I filed the railroad protests in behalf of my principals the facts could have easily been obtained.

Have you considered:

1. That there are now two great rival gasoline pipe lines in this area owned by rival groups, the Southeastern by Gulf and Pure, and the Plantation by Shell and the Standards of Kentucky and New Jersey?

2. That there are other major oil companies and many independent ones now doing business in the south who must continue to ship gasoline by present means and in competition with these larger owner-users of the new pipe lines or else retire from the field?

3. That the railroads have the right to participate in the transportation of gasoline on a fair competitive basis?

4. That it is a railroad duty to help protect the rights of these other shippers dependent upon railroads?

5. That it is possible these two rival lines through the attempted establishment of unduly low rates may be trying to outdo each other in the interests of their respective rival owner-users?

6. That through rate wars over large refiners and smaller independents, together with the forms of transportation they are using (rail, tanker, barge, trucks), may be eliminated from the competitive field to the detriment ultimately of the consumers?

7. That only within recent months the large pipe line owner-users have been compelled to enter into consent decrees with the Department of Justice to prevent further improper use of pipe line profits?

8. That generally gasoline in the interior is sold on basis of rail freight rates, the savings by reason of using other and cheaper forms of transportation being generally pocketed by the oil companies.

9. That it is the duty of the Interstate Commerce Commission to prevent rate wars between rival transportation lines, to protect other shippers and the general public from their evil effects?

10. That the suspended rates of the Plantation are even lower than the proportional rates of the Southeastern, which the commission also suspended and as to which the Georgia Public Service Commission also protested as unlawful?

11. That the railroads or any other protestant must put up a convincing prima facie case to induce the commission to exercise its suspension power?

12. That if these gasoline pipe lines instead of pleading "national defense" as justification for their acts, will simply put their charges on reasonable and non-discriminatory bases, there is little doubt but that the commission will let them become effective in plenty of time for use when the pipe lines are ready to transport? Incidentally, seven months merely represents the maximum period the commission is permitted by law to hold rates under suspension.

Towns County Erlanger Ticket Land Owners Office Robbed Paid by TVA Of $500 Cash

$20,000 Issued for Property Condemned for Storage Dam. Two Other Offices Are Ransacked After Police Depart.

Checks, for $20,000, the first money the Tennessee Valley Authority has paid into Georgia, were issued by the clerk of federal court yesterday for 14 Towns county property owners.

Judge Rort L. Russell signed an order permitting the property owners to collect up to 90 per cent of the money on deposit in the registry of the court for their lands, which are in the process of being condemned as part of the 11,000-acre tract which the new TVA storage dam will flood in Towns county.

Checks went to the following: Charles V. Phillips and the Federal Farm Mortgage Company of Washington, $3,000; James C. Lee and the Bank of Hiwassee, $1,000; James C. Lee and Joseph S. Kinsey, $1,000; Jay Wood, The Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation, $1,800; Edwin Alfus Johnson, Alfred Johnson, James Oliver Johnson and Mary Lou Johnson, $4,000; Frank W. Lee, Joseph Hugh Lee and Bank of Hiwassee, $500; John M. Johnson, $2,000; Pauline Barrett McConnell and Boyd Sloan, her attorney, $750; Joseph S. Kinsey and Boyd Sloan, his attorney, $6,500.

by pipe line is cheaper than by rail, the users of gasoline are entitled to enjoy this benefit brought about by the modern means of transport." I fully agree, and along with many others, look forward to a reduction in gasoline prices which, if one takes place, will be a novelty if we may judge the future by the past acts of the owner-users of large gasoline pipe lines in other sections of the country.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

TIFTON. The Royal Palm rolled into Tifton last Friday morning at a little before 3 o'clock, and as I walked from the train toward the hotel, an aged Negro shuffled from a little drink stand, asking if I wanted him to carry my bag. I thanked him, explaining that it was light and just a little distance to the hotel, but I asked why he was up at that time of the morning.

"Boss, my littil gran' boy es comin' on dat train from Cam Blandin," he ole Nigger can't close his eyes. Lawd, Lawd, what's gwine kum uv de wurl."

I stood there in the cold, damp morning air, watching the grand old man. I knew his wrinkle and old face was wet with tears, though I couldn't see them. We prayed together, and as I turned to go my way, I heard the whistle of the northbound Palm, bearing the grandson home for a brief visit before he was to leave for unannounced destination. And so, everywhere one turns, it is to find neighbors who bear heavy burdens in these trying days of world conflict.

President George King of the Abraham Baldwin Agricultural College, has asked me to come down there to address a meeting of friends from that section, together with his student body and faculty. I hadn't been to Tifton lately, and when Dr. F. O. Mixon came to the hotel for me Friday morning, I asked him to let me run across the street to the bank and shake hands with that grand old patriarch, Banker Bowen.

From there on it was a day of blessed fellowship with many, many friends in Tifton and that section of south Georgia. Dr. Mixon's car had some quail feathers on the back seat, and he was urging me to stay over that afternoon for a shoot, but I had to get the Ponce de Leon. We walked into

Georgia Author Evelyn Hanna, Is Bookworm

Latest Effort, 'Sugar in the Gourd,' Centers Around Same.

By MARY HARRIS ROWSEY. Evelyn Hanna, diminutive author from Thomaston, Ga., says she started life by being a bookworm. When she was supposed to be practicing scales, she always had a book propped up on the music rack. She failed to receive a degree from Agnes Scott College because she read when she should have been studying music—and because she didn't stay there long enough.

She took her library course because she thought all librarians had to do was sit on a stool and read books. Her family did it—they could break her habit—and she wishes they had!

Seven Months on Book. She's a bookworm in private life only, for the public knows her as the author of "Sugar in the Gourd," just released by E. P. Dutton & Company, and of "Blackberry Winter," a best seller published in 1938.

Miss Hanna says she spent two years writing her first novel, because she had to work on it whenever she was, even riding in automobiles.

When she decided to write "Sugar in the Gourd" she rented a small office, which contained not only a desk and a chair, but a furberelows to distract her thoughts. As a result it took her only seven months to complete the novel.

Other authors will gnash their teeth over the fact that she was required to rewrite only two sentences by the publishers. That is a decided record, for books often are rewritten several times before the publisher will approve their release.

Born Story Teller. Her big gray eyes twinkled with mischief when Miss Hanna referred to her office. "As soon as I moved in," she said, "the raised eyebrow department went to work. They were sure I was up to no good."

They'll change their minds when they read "Sugar in the Gourd," however. Miss Hanna is a born story teller. A love story told with great finesse, it also is a psychological satire. Like the author, Sabina Frost, one of the main characters is a bookworm, wrapped up in philosophy and poetry with little concern for the life's realities. It is not autobiographical.

Autographs Books. Miss Hanna was in Atlanta yesterday to autograph books, meet the readers and to be honor guest at the luncheon given by Miss Helen Parker in Rich's Magnolia room.

Included among the luncheon guests were Carolyn Coggins and Henrietta Buckmaster, both of New York, and whose names are familiar ones in the world of books.

Miss Coggins, promotion manager of the New York Herald Tribune book section, is well-known in Atlanta's literary circles. Miss Buckmaster is the author of "Let My People Go," the story of the underground railroad movement during the War Between the States, which has met with great success.

Linda and Steve Pose as Happily Married

SYNOPSIS. Linda Phillips, an attractive stenographer in Prairieville, has been engaged for four years to Kyle Norman, whose apparent inability to hold down a job has postponed their marriage several times. Linda craves excitement. She and Sally, a friend of school days, spend a week-end with Diane Frazier, a fashion designer in Chicago. At a cocktail party Linda meets Greg Hollister, a chemical engineer. They are attracted to each other instantly. Soon after her return home, Greg visits her. Sally and her husband, Hugh, a banker, give a dinner party for Linda and Greg. Linda is thrilled. Greg leaves that night. Linda is so much in love with Greg that when her parents disapprove of him she resigns her job and goes to Chicago to live with Diane. The day she arrives Greg, Diane and Linda attend a reception for wealthy Jerry Coleman and his bride, Brenda Jordan. There Linda meets Steve Baridon, a writer who abandoned his career because Linda jilted him. Linda is alone with Greg for a while, but his attitude has changed. Reluctantly the next day Linda informs Linda that Greg doesn't love her, that he has left for South America and that it was understood he would marry Diane. Heartbroken, Linda rushes from the apartment. Presently Steve arrives. When he hears what has happened he searches for Linda and finds her. She was contemplating suicide. He tells Linda she has decided to continue writing a book on the family farm and offers her a job as secretary. Linda accepts and agrees to marry him to avoid scandal.

INSTALLMENT XXVII. Linda read the caption of an inner page: Steve Baridon in Surprise Marriage (it read); Horse Fancier Wed in Middle Century Ceremony to Prairieville Stenographer. The story was long and spectacular. There were pictures. Pictures of Steve, handsome in riding togs; in tails. There was even a picture taken in his college days. Too, there were pictures of Brenda Coleman in her wedding veil, with the caption: She Jilted Society Horseman for Millions. And tucked in a corner of the page was a small snapshot of Linda, herself, taken months before in Prairieville and obtained by the newspaper in some unexplained fashion. All in all the story was cheap and shoddy. It misrepresented facts, facts none too clear even now to those most concerned—Linda and Steve.

"Oh, Steve, it's horrible!" "I know. They didn't leave much to the imagination." Ruefully.

"But what shall we do? I never expected anything like this!" She wept suddenly. "Oh, Steve, I had no right to ruin your life and make you the brunt of all this scandal."

"Courage, my dear," he said gently. "You've nothing to regret. All this will be forgotten inside a week. Just don't let it lick you." "But—Mary—your father—" How can I face them?

"I told you that dad is down south. I've already wired him the news, and Mary's head is so full of love's young dream she'll think our marriage very beautiful and romantic."

"There's just one thing," he went on. "Your mother telephoned early this morning. The newspapers had called her to confirm our marriage and they gave her this address. She wanted to talk to you."

When Linda's mouth trembled, he went on quickly. "I told her we were remarkably happy and that you would write soon. Was that all right?" Linda nodded silently, and Steve went on. "To all pretenses we are a happily wedded couple. So madly in love—love at first sight, remember—that we eloped and are leaving on a secret, extended honeymoon, so keep your chin up."

Holding fast to Steve's arm, Linda descended the wide stairs to the first floor, to find Mary Baridon awaiting them impatiently. Mary's pretty face was wreathed in smiles. Her eyes sparkled expectantly as she threw her arms around Linda's neck and kissed her warmly on the cheek. "Linda, I can't begin to tell you how happy I am for you both," she said. "Steve, you are lucky to have such a charming person for a wife. Isn't she pretty?"

"Very pretty," he agreed, smiling, but his eyes were unfathomable. Then with an attempt at jocularity, "Suppose we have breakfast now, Mary. After all, you are holding up the wedding trip, you know, and I'm an impatient bridegroom."

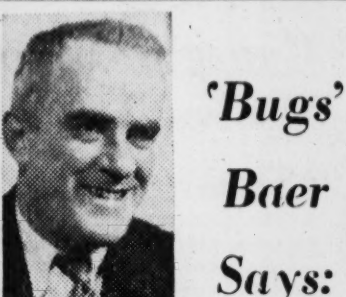

His eyes changed to meet Linda's as he said that, and she felt color suffusing her fair skin. Bridgroom! The sudden silence was awkward and strained before Mary's light laughter broke the spell.

"But of course," she murmured, linking her arms through those of Linda and Steve. "How foolish and thoughtless of me to keep you waiting, when you're anxious to get started. We'll have breakfast immediately."

Facing Mary across the breakfast table, Linda struggled to keep Steve's words—"Keep your chin up!"—uppermost in her mind, for Mary wailed, "I simply can't keep up with all these weddings. First it was Betty, and then Brenda, and now—you, Steve. Am I destined to be an old maid? What will I do without you?"

Despite her apparent acceptance of their love for each other, Mary sensed, Linda felt certain, that things were not as they should be, and yet she gave no sign that she suspected. While Steve sat quiet, almost grim, Linda shy and embarrassed, Mary's conversation bubbled on and on, describing the farm, the horses, touching on Steve's book proudly.

"Please make him stick with it, Linda," she pleaded, wistfully. "Father and I are terribly proud of his ability, although it seemed for a time that he would never be a novelist. Those were the days when the high and mighty Brenda—"

'Bugs' Baer Says:

They say Japanese spies are trying to get hold of a mail order catalogue to find out what Don Nelson is going to throw at 'em.

I predict Don will let 'em have the book. It's thicker than ever, and Don can let 'em have it in a load lots.

When those Chicago catalogue fellows start to do a job they make it first and tell you about it afterward.

I consider it a good choice. We can't afford to make any mistakes because there isn't going to be a rubber on the end of lead pencils any more.

We're sending the 1942-43 catalogue to Adolf and Benito. They are going to get it all from cover to cover.

from the table to get started on their way to Hillsacres. That last hour had been a desperate one in which Steve's eyes had warned her not to say too much, to drop too many words that might arouse Mary's slight puzzlement to actual distrust. She adored her brother, and Linda knew that should she suspect anything drastically wrong in their relationship she would fight tooth and nail to win him back.

Standing in the hall as they said their farewells, Linda pretended that Steve had seen and talked with Diane, nor did she allow her thoughts to dwell on what their conversation must have been. Instead, she kissed Mary, took her place beside Steve in the warm, closed car and turned a sober, saddened face toward the future—to the uncertain destiny awaiting her at Hillsacres.

During the long ride to Hillsacres—the highways were covered with ice and snow and necessitated slow and careful driving—Linda became acquainted with Steve Baridon, the man she had married.

She learned that his father's fortune had been swept away in the crash of 1929, and everything had been sold with the exception of the old Chicago house, the farm and a few of the horses, to make up the loss. Steve had gone to work then, as reporter on a Chicago newspaper.

Despite his drawing, easy speech, Steve was an excellent conversationalist, and Linda listened attentively.

"When father realized none of us was really equipped to lick the business world, he turned our horses into a money-making venture. All of us are horse fanciers and Mary and I were born to the saddle. By careful training dad's horses mastered enough showmanship to be entered in shows, and Mary rides as a society horsewoman."

"That proved to be our salvation, and while there isn't a fortune in it, still we were able to keep our heads during the depression. Now dad is down south with the champions for the winter, because the exhibitions start in the east next spring and he wants them to be in good shape."

He went on thoughtfully: "When Brenda realized that I was only a fifty-a-week reporter," his voice was bitter, "she began looking around for better prospects. I had ideas about finishing my book and making enough money to satisfy her expensive tastes, but she wouldn't wait."

Continued Tomorrow.

$122,000 School Raid Shelter Fund Is Approved by Council

Council yesterday earmarked $122,000 of a special capital improvements tax for use in constructing air raid shelters at Murphy and Hoke Smith Junior High schools. The shelters will be used as basements for new school buildings to be constructed later. The schools, both of which already have $25,000 available, will share equally in the new funds. An ordinance also was passed requiring sellers and purchasers of second-hand automobile tires to register sales and purchases with the police department, a move to curb tire thefts. Violation of the ordinance carries a penalty of $100 fine or 30 days in jail.

Council also approved an ordinance requiring owners of business houses to place switches outside their doors so that all illuminated signs, window lights and inside lights may be turned off in case of an air raid. Where watchmen are on duty all night the switches will not be required. Penalty for violation was set at $100 fine or 30 days in jail.

Gift Law Change Urged by Atlantans

Mrs. B. S. Williams, of 316 North avenue, N. E., yesterday urged the public to write members of congress calling on them to amend the laws which now forbid the War or Navy Department to accept public gifts for purchase of war materials or construction of fighting ships.

If the present law could be amended, Mrs. Williams pointed out, the way would be clear for the carrying out of a great memorial to the men who died at Pearl Harbor.

Shell Plants Double

November Production

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The War Department announced today the December production of artillery shells at government-owned loading plants doubled November's output.

The increase resulted from the addition of several new production lines and the establishment of longer working hours at some plants, it was explained.

PTA President Stresses Need For Volunteers

Mrs. Dan Plaster Calls for Heavy Registration of Citizen Defenders.

The urgent necessity for Atlantans and Georgians to volunteer for civilian defense service during registration week and for men and women to co-operate in the huge job of registering volunteers was stressed yesterday by Mrs. Dan Plaster, president of the Fulton County Parent-Teachers' organization.

Registration week begins Friday at all schools, and will continue every day except Sunday, for one week.

Parent-Teacher organizations and school principals will handle the registration, daily from 10 o'clock in the morning at 7 o'clock at night.

"Women and men can volunteer for whatever service they want," she explained. "They can say they want to be air raid wardens or watchers or anything else and we will register them for that duty."

Registration week is state-wide, proclaimed by the citizens defense committee in an effort to enlist the services of volunteers.

Entire San Jose Crew Is Rescued

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 19.—(AP)—All crewmen of the United Fruit Line's freighter San Jose, which was in collision Saturday night with the Grace Line's Santa Elisa and sank off the New Jersey coast, were reported saved today but in the words of one rescued man it was only by the grace of God.

Forty men composing the crew of the sunken vessel were landed here, and Eugene Underwood, attorney for the United Fruit Line, said all hands aboard the San Jose were accounted for.

In addition to the San Jose crew, 40 members of the Santa Elisa were brought here, while others were reported to have been picked up by vessels which headed for another east coast port.

ALLIGATORS ARE SCALED.

When a seaplane recently landed on an Amazon beach in Peru the crew found several man-eating alligators awaiting them, but the reptiles were so blasé that one permitted a flyer to pull it up on a pontoon of the plane.

Vitamin B Builds A Husky Appetite

By Ida Jean Kain.

It's the too thin girl who breaks down first under extra work and strain. She lacks that margin of padding necessary for the protection of her nerves.

If you are below the normal weight for your structure, you should adopt a definite program that will build up your weight and energy. Go by these rules: First, step up your appetite with the vitamin B complex. Second, stop hurrying. Take your time, especially at meals. Third, spend at least one hour daily out of doors.

Unless you relish food, it is next to impossible to eat enough to gain. But the B complex will give you more interest in food than you would believe possible. Your B complex includes Vitamin B1 (thiamin), B2 (riboflavin), vitamin B6 pyridoxine, and nicotinic acid and the filtrate factor. The vitamin B complex is sold at all drugstores.

To make a steady weight gain, have your meals regularly and never skip a meal. You must give food a more important place in your life. If you are in the habit of dashing off to work with only a gulp of coffee and a bite of toast for breakfast, stop that. Breakfast is highly important. It is your chance to get one-third of your day's energy requirements in calories.

As you increase your food intake, keep in mind the easily digested foods—whole milk, butter, cream, cereals, bread, and simple desserts. The too rich foods tax your digestion. Avoid too much gravy, fried foods, pastries. You cannot gain weight on food that is not assimilated.

Exercise also has its place in your weight-gaining plans. A normal amount of exercise makes for a better circulation and improves digestion and assimilation. Outdoor exercise is the ideal kind and if you can't play at some sport, walk. But make it your rule to stay out of doors for an hour a day. Mild calisthenics, especially those which tone the abdominal muscles, are also helpful.

To round out your program, be sure that you get adequate rest and sleep.

Some Tips On Growing Pot Plants

A splash of color for wintry rooms—the Kalanchoe with its profusion of tiny flame-colored blossoms.

Plants transform the house, during these blustery months. And you can grow beauties almost anywhere, if you know the right plants for the right spot.

Kalanchoe and cactus are happy neighbors in a sunny window, both like sun. Bed the cactus in a sandy loam, the Kalanchoe in porous gritty soil. In a novelty container the picturesquely cactus won't be overshadowed by Kalanchoe's eye-compelling color.

But perhaps you have a small window to contend with or would like to brighten a part of the room that doesn't get direct sun.

You can still grow the vivid green and white-striped pandanus, with its long, sword-like leaves, or the brilliant purple-flowered African violet. In winter, pandanus likes its leaves sponged occasionally with warm soapy water. African violet flourishes if you give it lots of water—but, please! none on its leaves.

For sheer beauty on a small scale, nothing surpasses a little terrarium. Give your friends something to talk about—a real woodland scene in miniature, planted in a brandy snifter or a tiny fish bowl. You can work a little miracle with moss, pebble and fern!

Dr. Brady Discusses Value Of Daily Round of Somersaults

By Dr. William Brady.

Regular morning rolls, which I recommend for every adult who is not incapacitated by senility or disease, executed as described and illustrated in the "Invitation to the Somersault-augua" (for copy send stamped envelope bearing your address), will help to overcome "poor circulation."

Tyros will please be advised of the controversy between Webster and Ol' Doc Brady about the meaning of the word somersault. Webster, in his obstinate way, asserts that it means a leap or jump in which a person turns his heels over his head, forward or backward, without touching the ground with any portion of the body. Brady firmly but gently insists that somersault means simply rolling or turning heels over head but with some portion of the body always in contact with the ground or floor. Brady maintains that what Webster describes as a somersault is an airspring (as distinguished from handspring) and challenges Webster to give a name to what Brady describes as a somersault.

A well-turned somersault takes a few seconds, and requires that you come up on your feet smiling or at least not particularly flustered or perturbed—I just rolled half a dozen on the floor before my desk in 15 seconds.

Another condition somersaulting tends to prevent or overcome is mental depression or the blues. A good many old geezers from 35 to 75, I find, choose to think I am facetious about this. Well, I'm sorry for them, but perhaps there are many more younger readers, younger in body and mind, who can comprehend that I am serious about it, when I say that I'd as soon go without breakfast as go without my morning rolls on getting out of bed. Somersaults are one of the few medicines I'm willing to take myself.

Now and then some correspondent informs me he or she suffered virtually a broken neck trying to turn somersaults. Some time ago one such correspondent threatened to sue me. But that doesn't worry me at all. I merely say here they are—turn 'em if you like, but of course at your own risk.

Somersaults return slacker blood from the stagnant splanchnic pool to the circulation. About one-fourth of the blood in the body is contained in the vast network of small and large blood vessels in the abdomen. In sedentary persons more than one-fourth stagnates there. Turning a few somersaults is one way, perhaps the easiest way, to get this stagnant blood back into circulation.

Try Potato Pancakes for a Special Treat

By Sally Saver.

Potato pancakes, considered quite a delicacy among potato dishes, usually are thought of as being too difficult for any except the skilled cook. Often dishes with a reputation for sophistication aren't difficult at all, or expensive; they depend upon a little practice in the art of putting things together and of judging the consistency of mixtures, cooking time and such small, but important things. Such is the case with potato pancakes. They're really very easy to make.

A platterful of golden brown potato pancakes, surrounded by little link sausages and centered with tart apple sauce will make a most impressive supper dish for family or late snackers. To make potato pancakes, follow these simple instructions:

1 1/2 cups grated raw potato
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 egg
4 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon pepper

Peel potatoes thinly and grate on fine grater. Combine potato with well beaten egg, then add other ingredients. Drop by tablespoonfuls into a frying pan containing a little hot shortening or oil and cook a moderate heat until golden brown on both sides. Serve piping hot with apple sauce, jelly or preserves.

Thrift Suggestion: When you have left-over rolls, scoop out centers, brush insides with butter and toast to a golden brown. Fill them with creamed fish, vegetables or meat or a creamy cheese mixture and serve as the main luncheon or supper dish.

Questions about foods, recipes, cooking or serving will be answered by Sally Saver. Write or phone The Constitution or WA. 6565.

Golden brown potato pancakes here are surrounded by little link sausages. In the center is tart apple sauce.

MY DAY: Latin-American Fair Opens in New York

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Sunday.—Friday evening, in New York City, I went to a very charming dinner given before the opening of Macy's Latin-American Fair. Even during the dinner, the stage was set, for we were delightfully entertained with music and dancing performed by artists from our neighboring republics.

At the fair I could not help but be impressed by the architecture of the buildings and the charming arrangement of flowers and merchandise. There will be music and dancing and food served during this exhibition. You can buy groceries, fruits and handwork as they come from these neighbors of ours. Their designs and skills are also adapted to modern needs. Some of the leather work and rugs, and much of the glass and pottery, make you want to furnish a house at once.

After I left the fair, I stopped for a minute at a weekly dance given by Miss Anne Morgan's committee at the Henry Hudson hotel. Here a crowd of boys in uniform, belonging to both services, were having a good time with some very charming girls.

On my arrival, they released some balloons from the balconies and I was told the boys and girls caught these. In two of them lucky numbers were found, which entitled a boy and a girl to a prize. I presented these prizes, but the boy who found the lucky number for the girl's prize had lost his girl, so we had to send him scurrying, box in hand, to find her in the crowd.

I reached my office yesterday morning at 9 o'clock and was sorry to bid good-bye to Miss Eloise Davison, who has been assistant director of civilian defense, in charge of group activities, under Mayor LaGuardia. The New York Herald Tribune lent her for a part-time job, which took up all her time. She feels she must return to her job in New York City. Miss Davison hopes to be able to help civilian defense, however, by working in New York City on some special assignments for the mayor.

Yesterday morning was spent largely with Dean James Landis at OGD, though I saw two or three members of the staff. The entire afternoon was taken up with appointments of various kinds. Mayor Cain, of Tacoma, Wash., lunched with me and I was happy to see him again. I remembered how much impressed I was by the way in which he was taking hold of his job in the hectic week after the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Last night I went to the Salvation Army Service Club, where I had promised to go last week and was not able to keep my appointment. They keep open house for the servicemen every Saturday night, and they wanted me to see their guests.

It is a relief to know that the Prime Minister of Great Britain is safely home. Whichever way he went, it seemed dangerous, but I confess that I felt that his going by air was less of a strain for me.

Hollywood Plans To Bring to Screen Best Play of World War Number One

By Louella O. Parsons.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 19.—(INS.) I know that those who saw "Friendly Enemies" during the last World War, will be greatly interested to hear that Edward Small has bought the rights and will bring it to the screen within the next few months. He has already engaged Allan Dwan to direct and he is considering Akim Tamiroff for one of the leads. Easily the best play of World War No. 1 "Friendly Enemies" was such a hit that it played to standing room only in New York, Chicago and London.

Louis Mann and Sam Bernard created the roles of the two old cronies who come to blows over political issues. Written by Sam Shipman and Aaron Hoffman and produced by Al Woods, it was one of the funniest plays, as well as the most patriotic of the 1918 season.

Speaking of reviving old-timers, "Are You a Mason?" a comedy that was a terrific hit years ago, will be resurrected by Paramount with William Caxton coming here to co-star with Victor Moore. Billy, a friend of long standing, played in Paramount pictures about 10 years ago, but he has been too busy recently in stage hits to give Hollywood a thought. But now Buddy De Sylva has had a brainstorm and is planning to co-star Billy and Victor. Well, Moore was a sensation in "Louisiana Purchase." My, but he was funny—and Billy is always a riot. If the play can be developed, it is a sufficiently big for Bob Hope he will be in it, too.

Jack Warner has been on the long distance telephone hours at a stretch talking to Herman Shumlin and George Kaufman, who head in the direction of Warner studio soon. He tells me he still has time to read stories. He read the galley proofs on "Go Catch a Falling Star," by Ruth O'Malley, and bought it before it even appeared in the Cosmopolitan magazine. My understanding is it is a serial and tells the dramatic story of a mother and three daughters—two of them in love with the same man. Sounds a little like "Four Daughters," but Jack says it has more depth.

Donna Reed, youthful M-G-M

star, gets herself a boy friend in "The Courtship of Andy Hardy," all because the public demanded it. Mickey Rooney's latest movie was taken to Huntington Park for a preview and many of the cards will have none of her.

New Romance Finds It Hard To Weather a Divorce

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie: I am a man of 30 and have been married 10 years. I have fallen in love with a woman who is also married. She tells me that she loves me better than her husband, and I am sure I love her the same. We both have good homes, but as we love each other we want to be together. Please give me an answer.

WORRIED MAN. I believe that both you and this woman should go away from each other. Stop seeing each other for a while. Since both of you are married, there is nothing that you can do now. If divorce is planned, there will be several months of waiting. During these months it is possible that one of you will change. It is possible that one of you may realize your mistake. Whether or not either of your families is bothered by that time, there will be a great deal of unpleasantness and a few heart aches. It will not be too late to make things right again, but it will take a great deal of talking, explaining and a new start for everyone concerned. Things of this nature are not patched up overnight and there are always scars.

At the present, both you and this woman have thought only of yourselves and not of others directly concerned with your life. Your affair, if there is a divorce, will touch many lives and cause a lot of unhappiness, and then, too, there is no promise that the new marriage will be a success. For that reason and for the benefit of others, I would advise that you and this woman stop seeing each other for awhile. Say two months. Perhaps in these two months both of you will find a solution within your own hearts and minds. The apple on the top of the tree is always the best, you know, and perhaps the two of you are anxious for each other, for both of you are not free, and are unattainable.

GIRL IS WISE TO HIDE JEALOUSY

Dear Dixie: For the past four months I have dated a boy whom I like very much. He had dated no one but me until two weeks ago when a girl separated us. I have not seen him since, as he has been dating her two and three times a week.

I would like to know what to do: forget him or try to win him back?

LONESOME AND BLUE.

I think I would forget him for awhile. He is no doubt just having a romantic interlude with her, and will come back to you when his affections cool. When he comes back, and he will, don't let him think you have been nursing a broken heart during his disappearance. Let him know you missed him, because that will flatter him, but don't fuss at him for going with the other girl, for that will show a jealous nature. A lot of the boys drift off now and then, but if they think anything of a girl, they will drift back again. Just sit steady in the boat and watch, and wait.

Easily Made MILK Tempting FOR BABY

Mothers find that one of the best ways to give baby all the milk he needs is to make some of it each day into tempting rennet-custards. Children love to eat them with a spoon, and thus get more of the valuable nutrition which milk supplies so generously. You can make these eggless, non-cooked custards in a minute with "Junket" Rennet Tablets—unsweetened, add sugar and flavor to taste. The rennet enzyme makes them digest more readily than plain milk. Widely recommended by doctors for babies and children. Older children enjoy the flavors and colors of rennet-custards made with "Junket" Rennet Powder. Easier and quicker. At grocer's.

Major Leagues Ready To Play More at Night

Number Still Undecided; Red Sox Desire Twilight Contests.

By JUDSON BAILEY.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(P)—The major leagues are going to have more night games this year, but they are still in the dark, in a manner speaking, on the details.

There was a general belief today that the whole problem now is up to Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, who is wintering in Florida, and that he would shortly poll the 16 big league clubs by mail to arrive at a program.

Fourteen night games at home for each of the 11 clubs having lighted parks seems probable, but President Roosevelt's suggestion last Friday that more night games be played has opened up some additional possibilities.

One of the most novel of these is the desire of the Boston Red Sox, who have no lights, to play twilight games. Owner Tom Yawkey is vacationing at his hunting preserve in South Carolina and nothing definite has been done, but other executives of the Red Sox have been giving the matter consideration.

Whether the Boston Braves would follow suit is not known and might be a determining factor in the eventual decision by the Sox. Besides the two Boston clubs, the only others not having lights are the New York Yankees, Detroit Tigers and Chicago Cubs.

Under the present rules of the major leagues, all clubs are limited to seven home games at night. At the last two winter meetings, the American League has sought to have this limit raised and been overruled by Landis siding with the National League. The latter outfit retreated Saturday at what was to have been a secret meeting, agreeing to an increase which the members hoped would not exceed 14 games.

Some of the American League clubs want 14 as the minimum, instead of the maximum, and a few of the magnates foresee that Landis may permit a form of local option during the war.

Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Senators, said today he favored playing 20 or 25 night games during the three summer months and thought each club should have the right to decide for itself on the basis of local conditions. He would like to play during the day on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays and at night through the week.

Dusek To Face Robert Young In Main Match

Promoter Abe Simon announced yesterday his complete wrestling lineup for Wednesday night at Sports Arena.

Babe Dusek, youngest and most fiery member of the famed Dusek brothers, will meet Robert Young, not the movie star, but a smooth 210-pounder from Pennsylvania, in the 90-minute feature attraction.

Since this is a new year in wrestling, Simon is bringing in a host of new faces. He figures fans would welcome some newcomers.

Semi-finalists will be Buck O'Malley and Bad Boy Brown, the Chattanooga Choo-Choo.

Opening the fireworks will be Soldier Thomas and Ed Pavlusko, whose name sounds like he should be a concert pianist, but who actually has a reputation for playing havoc with his opponents.

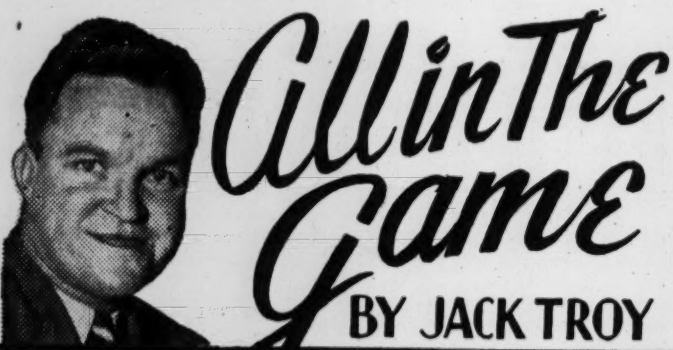

Dusek is a big shot in the mat business. He is known as a pistol-ball because he keeps his customers on edge every minute he is in action.

Regular low prices will be in effect, and Simon announces that all men of the United States armed forces will be admitted free of charge.

Fordham Only New Foe For Eagle Eleven in '42

All in the Game

BY JACK TROY

Call of Diamond

It seems a bit strange that the Detroit Tigers consider Charley Gehringer through at 38—and omit him from the 1942 roster—when fellows like Frankie Frisch, Oscar Bluege, Red Lucas and other time-honored veterans are talking about playing again.

Nothing yet has been heard from Jimmy Dykes, who remained on the active list until last season, but chances are he'll be in there swinging if the call of the service becomes as strong as indicated right now.

While he didn't play regularly, Dykes, the former Cracker, was still active at the age of 45. Leo Durocher became a bench manager for Brooklyn last year at the age of 35. So Durocher probably will come out of "retirement" as one of the younger stars of the majors in 1942.

This seems to be the early trend. It is figured that there won't be a single player in the big leagues who is unmarried and between the ages of 21 and 35 when the campaign gets under way. Many major leaguers are married and figure to be available at least temporarily, but the question remains as to how long a wife will exempt the younger players from the service.

Point is, if the game continues as President Roosevelt has urged, there's no telling what old favorite you may see in action again. The years may roll back and baseball may reintroduce Frisch, Dykes, Bluege and others of that vintage sure enough.

Baseball may not be played on the same high level as formerly, but what's the difference? Everybody will be in the same boat and there'll be more or less even competition.

Southern Rivals

In connection with Gehringer's retirement, it is most unusual that the two boys who'll battle to become his successor are former Southern leaguers.

Dutch Meyer, cousin of the Texas Christian football coach, played for Knoxville, while Jimmy Bloodworth was in Joe Engel's Lookout cast at Chattanooga.

Meyer played for Detroit part of last season. Bloodworth did his playing for Washington. Now they're on the same side, but definitely rivals, as ever.

No chance, one supposes, of Manager Del Baker returning to active duty after all these years. It would be a lot better to reinstate Gehringer.

In Short

Baseball writers of America unanimously chose Joe DiMaggio for the player of the year award, making the second time he has been so honored by the men who report the happenings of the diamond. Tough on Ted Williams, now in the service, that he should bat .406 the same year DiMaggio batted safely in 56 consecutive games. Normally a .400 batting average would win any award hands down.

They say when Craig Wood wins a golf tournament, it won't. He captured the Oklahoma City and Reddy Tee tournaments in 1929; the Radium Springs Open in '33; the Lakes Open in Australia in '34 and the New York Metropolitan Open in '40. Not a single one of these tournaments was ever held again. Now it's recalled he won the National Open last year. Just a second there, brother; he also won the Masters. So far it's on the '42 schedule.

Joe Louis was scheduled to serve as a second in a Baltimore fight last night, but permission was denied by Army officials. The engagement had been made before he entered the service.

It is suggested that if war cuts heavily into the football reserves of the colleges they'll be calling them "curtain backs" next season.

The Navy's answer to reports baseball stars like Bob Feller might be allowed to pitch on weekends is contained in an officer's statement recently that "the Navy says Chief Boatwain's Mate Feller has a job to do, and while he's doing that there'll be no more interviews, no photographers, no statements."

"Colleges keeping football should not be cutting out their minor sports," Coach Jack Meagher declares. "They should not only keep their minor sports but speed up their campus programs for getting boys in fine physical shape. We at Auburn are making plans now to increase intramurals, setting-up exercises and more walking for the students."

No Curtailment At Notre Dame

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(P)—

Frank Leahy, Notre Dame football coach, said while visiting relatives that the South Bend institution intends to carry on its athletic program without basic change unless ordered to do otherwise by the government.

'Grudge' Golf Battle Arranged; Red Cross Will Get the Money

Frank Guy has been trying to play Bob Ingram a golf match for years. Once at the Georgia State Amateur golf tournament, Guy offered $100 to the official starter to pair him with Ingram. He has challenged him numerous times at East Lake. Then the other day Guy and Ingram got into an argument. A match was arranged. Guy will play left-handed. Ingram will give him a stroke a hole. Of course, Guy usually plays from the right side. They will battle for $1 per hole. The winner will equal the amount he gets and turn all of the money over to the Red Cross. The match will be played at 1 o'clock today at East Lake. L. A. Scott and Al Thornwell will go along as seconds—I mean referees.

Georgia Team Badly Beaten By Kentucky

Wildcats Use 14 Players To Pile Up 51-26 Win at Athens.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 19.—Completely controlling play from beginning to end, a smoothly-working Kentucky basketball team walloped outclassed Georgia here tonight, 51 to 26, before a slim crowd of 1,500.

The Wildcats jumped into the lead right at the start, ran it to nine points before the Bulldogs ever scratched, and piled up a 28-13 lead at halftime. It was the worst defeat handed a Georgia team since Elmer Lampe came here as basketball coach.

Kentucky showed well-rounded offense, with scoring being well divided between four men. Akers, star guard, was the leading scorer for the winners with 11 points. Georgia fought a game battle, with Captain Bobby Moore turning in his usual brilliant display. Moore was high scorer of the game, with 13 points, although he was a marked man throughout. All his scores came on long shots, for Georgia was never able to work the ball in.

Where Kentucky really stood out was under the baskets. Georgia never got more than a single shot and at one time the visitors got six successive shots before finally making two points. Coach Rupp used 14 players, every one he brought on the trip.

In a preliminary game Georgia freshmen defeated Lanier High, of Macon, 27 to 26.

M. E. Harkins Is Re-elected Casting Head

Clint Davis Is Named Chairman of Directors of Atlanta Club.

M. E. Harkins was re-elected president of the Atlanta Fly and Ball Casting Club at its first monthly meeting of the year.

Harkins is one of the outstanding conservation leaders and sportsman in Georgia. He is a director of the Georgia Wildlife Federation, his club having sponsored the organization of the big state-wide group that of campaigning for a commission-director department of wildlife.

A full slate of officers and directors was named as follows: B. F. Sheppard Jr., vice president; Horace Gurley, secretary; T. A. Kitchens, treasurer; Clint Davis, chairman of the board, and B. T. Wellborn, Bennett, Hutchison, Everett, Roach, Jeff McCord, George Kitzinger and H. M. Edwards, directors.

The club voted to lease a lake in north Fulton county and a committee was appointed to complete negotiations. This objective had been sought for over two years and members were elated over the prospect of casting in their "own" lake within the next month. They likewise expected the lake to attract new members, citing this as a missing link that had long been sorely felt.

Harkins appointed a rules committee, which will draft regulations on fishing and submit them to the club and the lessor within the next two weeks.

The old and new president was presented a miniature, 14-karat gold ball casting reel in a surprise move engineered by the directors. Clint Davis made the presentation, along with a speech praising the efforts of Harkins during the past year.

CHAMACO WINS.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—(P)—Joe Chamaco, of Mexico City, chalked up an unfinished run of seven to-day to defeat John Fitzpatrick, of Los Angeles, 50 to 49, in 55 innings, to take the undisputed lead in the world three-cushion billiards championship tournament. It was Chamaco's fourth win in five matches.

Jack Dempsey Here--Talks War, Oil

Old Mauler Wants To Help Mass Training of U. S. Forces.

By THAD HOLT.

Jack Dempsey was in town yesterday, talking about the war and the damnable, vital fluid which keeps modern wars going—oil.

The old Manassa Mauler, looking trim and fit in a natty blue pen-striped suit and not at all like a man who had observed his 46th birthday last week, flew here to discuss his oil interests with his partners, C. E. Woolman, vice president of Delta Airlines, and Robert Manzell, of Tyler, Tex.

Their 2,250 acres in northern Louisiana are ready to start "coming in."

Manzell, whose lengthy association with Dempsey dates back to the days when both were fighters, displayed intricate charts of the wells, showing where there was sand and water and gas and oil. "It's all Greek to me," grinned Jack, "but Messrs. Woolman and Manzell say it's the business and that things are fixing to hum down there." Dempsey revealed that the wells they owned at Hawkins, Tex., were coming through O. K.

Pressed for a guess on what the new wells might produce, Manzell said if he made one it would have to be "pretty wild." He thought they might do 2,000 barrels a day, but was quick to say that amount might be an exaggeration and very easily could be too conservative.

"THOSE DIRTY JAPS." "Bet those dirty Japs would like to get hold of that property," exclaimed Dempsey, who is waiting to hear from the United States Army on his application for enlistment.

Jack was told that he couldn't be taken because of his age and the fact that he lacked previous military experience. "If they want me to get experience I'll get it," he said. "I'm going to join the National Guard and home defense units in New York."

"I feel I could be of service to our armed forces," he said seriously. "I have my own ideas about physical training which I'll reveal if and when I'm accepted."

Dempsey said he had no announcement to make at this time about the U. S. Navy's invitation that he join up.

"I think a man should go into whatever field he can do the most good," he explained. "I'm still pulling every string I can to get into the type of work for which I believe I'm best fitted."

"THINGS TO WORK OUT." "I'm confident that things will work out satisfactorily and that before long I'll be in one of the branches of our armed forces. I want to help in our massed training. I know how to use my hands, body and feet, have an idea of what balance is and I believe I can help train thousands of American boys in such a way that they will be better able to combat the enemy. By this I don't mean fighting with fists. This is not a war of flesh and blood. It is a war of steel and the army which best knows how to use its equipment will win."

"I'm trying for a chance to impart my knowledge of these things to our soldiers. If they can't use me in that capacity, I'll tote a gun—and like it."

All resemblance to Louis stops after we say that each thoroughly hen-pecked the champion ahead of them by turning in much more outstanding performance. Jim Braddock, champion when Louis came up, had lost 19 fights and one other had been declared no contest. Cochrane has lost 28 fights. There is also a slight parallel between Louis and Robinson in the fact that each had to come up the hard way—as kids—without much aid from the old man.

But there the parallels end. Joe is southern; Robinson is a Harlemite. Joe is sultry, sleepy dynamite; Robinson is a ball of fire. Joe shuffles in; Robinson bounds like a kangaroo.

ON THE LINE

With Considine

By BOB CONSIDINE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(INS)—Not since Joe Louis came along to spread-eagle the heavyweight division before he was his champion has a nonchampion stood out as clearly in a division as does Ray Robinson, the spidery, kinky-pompadoured welterweight.

Just as it was a foregone conclusion that Louis would win the title the first time he got a crack at it, so it is certain that Robinson will ascend formally to the title once owned by the Mickey Walkers, Jack Brittons and Ted Kid Lewises just as soon as he can get Sailor Red Cochrane in the same ring with him.

The fight comes next month at Madison Square Garden for the benefit of the fight against infantile paralysis. Unbeaten and untied in 27 professional fights—and still not yet 21—Robinson will be at least a 1-to-3 shot.

All resemblance to Louis stops after we say that each thoroughly hen-pecked the champion ahead of them by turning in much more outstanding performance. Jim Braddock, champion when Louis came up, had lost 19 fights and one other had been declared no contest. Cochrane has lost 28 fights. is proud, vain and resentful in a way that reminds one hauntingly of the early Ty Cobb.

But what a simply swell fighter Robinson is! They don't make 'em like Robinson very often. He's worth waiting a long time to see. He's brilliantly fast with his limbs, can hit a man twice with the same fist with so little time wasted between one punch and the next that you think of an air-hose hammer. He can bound in and out of range as no one has been able to do since Kid Chocolate—throwing a blizzard of punches and somehow mnaaging self - consciously to smooth out his stiff, veiled pompadour every few punches. He can disembowel an opponent with a long, fast uppercut that rises up across a man's vitals, and he can hit you with a straight right that has shocking speed and power. We never saw a harder punch by a little (145-pound) man than the one he hung on

Kentucky Five Boasts Stars From Gridiron

Visitors Favored by Dozen Points; Tech Drills on Passing.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Kentucky plays Georgia Tech in Basketball here tonight and there in a problem is presented.

Not as to the outcome of the game, for the mighty Wildcats will probably win by 10 or 12 points. But fans are likely to become confused over whether to watch Kentucky Coach Adolph Rupp and his antics on the sidelines or his smooth-working, brilliant team on the floor.

This Rupp, the "Man in the Brown Suit" as he is called, is quite a character. His clowning and frantic motions on the sidelines is a feature of every Kentucky game. But in addition, he has 16 of the best basketball players in the country at his command.

CAGE SCHOLARSHIPS. The Wildcats go in for basketball in a big way. Scholarships are granted numerous prospects and therefore Rupp has been able to keep his team at the top of the Southeastern Conference heap for the past several years.

Kentucky lost to Tennessee, 40-46, last Saturday night in Knoxville. But that's no disgrace. Ask Long Island University, which suffered the same fate in the Sugar Bowl game. When the two clubs meet in a return match in Lexington, it's likely to be another story.

Tech and the 'Cats will meet at 8 o'clock in the Tech gym. And the Jackets hold little hopes of winning. Losses to Alabama and Vanderbilt lowered Roy Mun-dorff's team's stock no little and even the most ardent fan can see little hope for victory over Kentucky.

GRID TO COURT.

One of the many stars on the Rupp team is little Ernie Allen, brilliant all-round athlete who almost wrecked Tech's football team with his passing last fall. Kentucky is a team of stars and Allen is one of the brightest. He shot 17 points against Tennessee.

Other acts include Captain Carl Staker and Center Mel Brewer.

Mundorff has been juggling the Tech lineup in an effort to obtain a winning combination. His veteran starting five hasn't clicked to satisfaction since the season's first game, so he may count on sophomores Jake Lance and Gene Snyder for a lot of service.

The Jackets spent yesterday's practice session trying to get their passing back to normal. In their last two games, they have thrown the ball away or right into opponents' hands time and again. And you can't score while the other folks have the ball.

Then, too, Mundorff is hoping Carlton Lewis, Hoyt Blackwell and Jim Hearn will regain their shooting eyes before game time.

Canton, Purples Battle for Lead

Smithies Play G.M.A. Quint In 'Big 6' Play

Typists-Marist Vie; Castleberry Returns to Cage Wars.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

The Canton High Greenies, with one of the best high school cage teams in the state, come roaring into Atlanta tonight with blood in their eyes and revenge in their hearts to battle Dwight Keith's surprising Boys' High five for first place in the Big Six League.

The titanic struggle will get under way at 7:30 o'clock at Henry Grady court, Swede Phillips' Tech High five and Whack Hyde's G. M. A. Cadets will take the first league game immediately after the Purple-Greenie tiff, and Commercial and Marist will vie at 9 o'clock in an afternoon engagement on the Boys' Club court.

With each quintet in the loop having played two games, only the Purple Hurricane and Coach Carroll's Greenies remain unbeaten, and the winner of tonight's test will take over the undisputed leadership. The Canton five, the only out-of-town team in the league, has plenty of reason to seek revenge on the Keith-coached machine, for last year, the loop's first season in existence, the upstarters were out in front all the way until late in the year when a Hurricane spurt put them in front and gave them the championship.

Canton Favored.

The Cantonites rate the favorite's role this time, however, as they have licked both Tech High, pre-season co-favorite with Canton, and Commercial High by convincing margins. Bud Tippens, ace guard, is pacing league scorers with 34 points in his team's two games. This veteran, along with "Lank" McCurry, six-foot three-inch pivot man, and Allen Hardin, a crackjack floor man, give the invaders a very potent scoring machine.

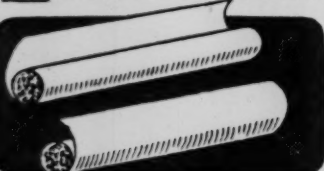

Two newcomers, Raymond Echols, with 22 points to date, and Charles Brooks, with 21, are the high scorers for the green Purples who have shown a surprisingly well-knit offense in downing G. M. A. and Commercial in their first two loop tiffs.

The clash will be marked by the return to league play of sensational Clint Castleberry, who injured a shoulder in the Milk Bowl football game here New Year's Day. Capering Clint was an All-G. I. A. basketball guard last year, but has been shifted to forward for the 1942 wars. In his first game Saturday night against Lanier in Macon he dumped in 16 points as a late-game Purple surge almost caught the powerful Poets, rated one of the best this year, Lester (Beaunpo) Hughes, only other regular back from last year, is also nursing an injured shoulder, but may be ready to go "all out" in this important combat.

Smithies-Cadets.

The winner of the Tech High-G. M. A. clash will tie the loser of the Purple-Canton go for second place in the standings. The Smithies, who looked great in pre-season milling, lack poise and so far have been somewhat of a disappointment. Mike Hoben, elongated Cadet center, is only one point shy of League-Leading Bud Tippens in the scoring department, and along with Guy Andrews, another dangerous scoring threat, should make the College Parkers a worthy opponent for any outfit in the league.

Dutch Dehnert, Eagles' Coach, Is Celtics' No. 1 Public Enemy

Dutch Dehnert was kicked upstairs by the Original Celtics. A star player with the famous Shamrocks for 20 years, big Dutch was dropped from the Celtics' payroll at the end of the 1940 season. The big Dutchman took it like a real trouper, realizing of course that he had outlived his usefulness as a player and was just as much excess baggage.

But Dehnert didn't quit basketball. Almost immediately after his release was announced there came an avalanche of coaching offers from colleges, independent and professional teams all over the country.

Dehnert accepted the offer made him by an automobile concern to pilot the Detroit Eagles. And in his first year at the helm he led his club to the world's professional championship in the $5,000 tournament sponsored by the Herald-American.

Dutch is not unlike any other human being. He was a bit proud of his achievement and didn't hesitate to send the Celtics a wire in which he said something about "it's a great feeling to be in the big leagues after all these years."

The Shamrocks were burned up. "How does that big bloke get that way?" one of them is reported to have said. "We'll beat those Eagles into spavens next time we get 'em on the same court with us," declared another Celtic. And so it went. And so it goes.

Today, the Eagles are looking forward with a great deal of anticipation and delight to entering the south, which for years has been the Celtics' exclusive property. Should the Eagles knock off their rivals as they expect to do, they see immediate prospect of their replacing Davey Banks, Nat Hickey & Company as No. 1 basketball attraction in Dixie.

DUTCH DEHNERT As a Celtic Star

The Celtics would be the last to deny they have a good thing down here in the southland. They will shoot the works to preserve their record and powerful appeal at the gate. They know they're heading for a battle on the night of January 27 at the city auditorium here. And from advance interest in the classic, thousands of Atlantans and Georgians have the same viewpoint.

Tickets will be placed on sale Wednesday morning at Adam Hat Store, Big Town Billiards, Walworth & Hood and Reeder & McGaughey.

Louise Suggs Eliminates Tainter To Enter Finals

PUNTA GORDA, Fla., Jan. 19.—(P)—Louise Suggs, of Lithia Springs, Ga., was again in full command of her game today as she eliminated Georgia Tainter, of Fargo, N. D., 5 and 4, in the semifinals of the annual Punta Gorda Women's Golf Tournament.

Miss Suggs, the defending titleholder, meets Ellamae Williams, of Chicago, three times Illinois state champion, in the 36-hole finals tomorrow.

Miss Williams, a newcomer to west coast competition, eliminated Mary Jayne Garman, of Sarasota, 3 to 2, in a match that provided the best golfing exhibition of the day.

Miss Tainter, far off the form she displayed in earlier rounds, failed to win a single hole in the first nine and was five down at the turn.

She rallied and shot a par 4 on the 35th and 10th, dropped the 11th and took the 505-yard 12th with a par 5. The 13th was halved by Miss Suggs, playing an unbeatable golf, closed out the match on the 14th.

Miss Williams was 2-up on Miss Garman at the turn and finally ended the match on the 175-yard water-trapped 16th. Miss Williams shot a hole-in-one on the green into the flag pond, and the Sarasota player's second fell in the same pond. The winner took six strokes on the par 3 hole after splashing herself in attempting to stroke the ball out.

The field today was dry and it was too warm for any notable achievements. Owners expressed hope for cooler weather in time for the all-age stakes tomorrow.

Golfers Here Plan Blond-Brunet Meet

The Metropolitan Women Golfers will play at Piedmont Park golf course Wednesday morning. Prizes will be awarded low net score in all divisions.

As an extra event, the blond golfers will vie with the brunets in team play, the players on the winning team to be awarded defense stamps. All women golfers in Atlanta are invited to participate in this event.

Bowling Gehringer Signs As Detroit Coach

DETROIT, Jan. 19.—(P)—Charles Gehringer, the Detroit Tigers' mechanical man, signed a one-year contract today as nonplaying coach.

Thus the playing career of the veteran second sacker, whose 18 years in the majors were spent with the Bengals, had come to an end.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed. "We are very glad to have Gehringer as coach," said General Manager Jack Zeller.

Tococa Five Plays Atlantans Tonight

TOCOCO, Ga., Jan. 19.—Cherry Foster's LeTourneau quintet, one of the strongest in the state, will engage the Atlanta Aces at their new gym here at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow night.

The recently organized Atlanta outfit has scored 139 points in its last two games and is coming here with a potent force boasting some of the best players in the vicinity including Jimmy Johnson, Lank Rainey and Gene Warlick.
